New German Offensive On North Stalingrad Factory Area Stopped

Russians Repulse "One Attack after Another" of Infantry and Tanks; Desperate Nazi Attempt To Break Through in Black Sea Section Is Also Repelled by Red Army; 23 Fortified Points Destroyed

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Wednesday, Oct. 28. (AP)—The Red army stopped a new German offensive in a workers settlement and factory area of northern Stalingrad yesterday after a successful Russian counterattack had driven the Germans out of South Stalingrad onto the bleak steppe below the city, the Russians said today.

The Soviet midnight communique said that in the new drive the Germans sent infantry and tanks in "one attack after another" in an attempt to break the Russian lines, but that the Russians repulsed all attacks.

In this area, the communique said, more than 900 Germans were killed and eleven tanks destroyed.

Heavy fighting also continued northwest of Stalingrad, where the Germans launched twenty attacks in a determined effort to recapture a village, which the Russians previously had taken in a counterattack. The Soviet forces, however, held firm.

Artillery was especially active. One Russian unit destroyed four tanks and twenty-three fortified points and another battery destroyed three tanks and wiped out about a company of infantry.

In the Black Sea area, the communique said, German forces made a desperate attempt to break through to a German garrison surrounded by Red army troops in a village northeast of the Port of Tuapse. All the attacks were repelled.

At another point in this area, Russian forces were said to have advanced and improved their positions, destroying about three companies of Germans.

On the northwest front, between Moscow and Leningrad, the Germans launched two attacks at one point, but the Russian lines held, driving the Germans back to their original positions.

The main fighting, however, was in the battered sector of northern Stalingrad around the workers settlement and the Red October Iron foundry.

Allied Nations' Navies Praised By Admiral Leahy

Chief of Staff to President Sees "Epidemic of Inhuman Warfare"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—Predicting a long "epidemic of inhuman warfare" before eventual defeat of the "war-mad savages" of Axis nations, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the president tonight termed Navy day "an occasion not for celebration but for sober analysis," and paid glowing tribute to the navies of America's allies.

Taking strength of the nation's naval strength, Leahy pointed to successes of surface and submarine units and to "the outstanding performance in battle of our fleet aircraft, in many cases when they were heavily outnumbered by the enemy."

He said the United States naval air force was "by far the most powerful and most efficient" in existence, and in a side comment on the army air corps, said that "plane for plane and man for man there are no superiors in any existing air force. This has been amply demonstrated on all the fighting fronts."

Speaking at a dinner commemorating the day set aside for paying tribute to the navy, Leahy said "it is no longer just America's navy. It is a navy fighting for all the freedom-loving people of the earth. x x x And it is not fighting alone."

Warning that "if we were fighting alone, I am frank to tell you that a complete defeat of all the aggressor nations would be almost impossible," Leahy called for a salute for "every ship and every fleet that fights with us for freedom and the rights of man."

American Officer Killed in Enemy Raid on Assam

British Subject, 5 Others Also Die; Several Planes Destroyed

NEW DELHI, Oct. 27. (AP)—A strong force of Japanese fighters and bombers which struck United States air fields in the Disbargarh area of Northeastern Assam province Sunday killed an American air officer and a British subject, wounded five Americans and destroyed or damaged several grounded transport planes, a United States Army communique disclosed today.

The enemy returned yesterday to strafe the same fields bombed the day before.

For their part, the American air forces struck during the weekend at the enemy in Burma and South China and, indicating that a heavier swapping of blows was imminent, the official announcement said:

"Taking into account other raids, particularly the recent attack by United States bombers on the Linsai mine north of Tientsin, the full in wide-range aerial warfare may be said to have ended with the Monsoon."

The communique singled out Lieut. Edward M. Nollmeyer of Everett, Wash., for special mention for single-handedly attacking an entire enemy formation during Monday's enemy attacks and knocking down one of the raiders without damage to himself or his plane.

Two of the Sunday raiders were shot down by United States fighter planes which rose immediately to engage them and one of the interceptors also was lost, said the bulletin from the headquarters of United States Army Forces in China, Burma and India.

Another American Merchant Ship Is Sunk by Germany

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—The navy announced tonight that a medium-sized merchant vessel was torpedoed, shelled and sunk by an enemy submarine in the Atlantic off the Northern coast of South America early in October and survivors have now been landed at a United States east coast port.

The ship was the SS Albatross, a 1,200-ton freighter, which was sunk on Oct. 15, off the coast of Brazil. The ship was carrying a cargo of oil and other supplies.

Willkie's Radio Report on Tour Draws Comment

Roosevelt Says Atlantic Charter Applies to All Humanity

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—President Roosevelt, replying today to Wendell Willkie, declared: "The Atlantic Charter applies to all humanity, as the secretary of state and I have said several times before."

Willkie, in a radio report on his recent world tour, said last night that many people of Asia and Eastern Europe doubted whether the Atlantic Charter applied to them. There was widespread demand, he said, for a world charter of freedom.

The Atlantic Charter, among other things, declares that the dignity of government under which they will live; and they wish to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them."

Mr. Roosevelt, in reply to Willkie at his press conference, permitted himself to be quoted directly for emphasis. He explained, in response to a question, that the term "Atlantic Charter" referred to the scene of the meeting between himself and Prime Minister Churchill on the Atlantic ocean at which it was promulgated in August, 1941, rather than to the nations to which it applies.

Basis of Lend-Lease
The charter, originally an eight-point declaration of "common principles in the national policies" of the United States and the United Kingdom, was subsequently adopted in the declaration of the United Nations and signed by representatives of all, including Russia and China. Its economic objectives have formally been made the basis of lend-lease agreements with all American allies.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the universal applicability of the charter was a matter of record and that his statement did not constitute news. In connection with his comment, it was recalled that Secretary of State Hull, in a major address last July 23, declared:

"The pledge of the Atlantic Charter is of a system which will give every nation, large or small, a greater assurance of peace, greater opportunity for the realization of its aspirations to freedom, and greater facilities for material advancement."

Willkie, reporting on his recent tour of the Middle East, Russia and China, said last night that the people of Russia and China were "bewildered and anxious" because they did not know what the United States was fighting for, and continued:

"Many of them have read the Atlantic Charter. Rightly or wrongly, they are not satisfied. They ask: What about a Pacific Charter? What about a World Charter?"

Speech Draws Comment
Willkie also reiterated his demand for a second front and called for an end to the "nonsense" that citizens should not question the judgment of the military experts.

On the other phases of Willkie's speech Mr. Roosevelt brushed aside any comment, repeating to three questions a paraphrase of the cigar slogan, "not a cough in a carload." The president said there were no controversies in carloads of speeches.

There was considerable comment on Willkie's speech in other quarters of the capital, however. Hull at his press conference replied to Willkie's criticism of the administration's attitude toward India with a denial that it was indifferent and a statement that this country was watching for opportunities that might develop.

Thrust Which Penetrates American Lines Repulsed; Fierce Fighting Continues

Heavy Damage Is Inflicted on Enemy Warships; Japanese Apparently Hold Control of Sealanes in and around Solomons; Marines and Army Men Determined To Hold Airfield at All Costs

British Offensive Breaks Inside Axis Desert Positions

Eighth Army Makes Major Maneuver To Funnel Armored Columns

By STEPHEN BARBER
CAIRO, Oct. 27. (AP)—The British Eighth Army, under the constantly roaring offensive support of the Allied air arm, broke further inside the main Axis desert positions today on a major maneuver calculated to funnel the armored columns to a decisive engagement with enemy tanks.

So far the slugging showdown between the heavy ground forces had not begun after four days of fierce fighting for position on the initiative of the Allied forces.

Minor Tank Engagements
Minor tank engagements were reported, but they were inconclusive, and the preparatory tasks were left in the main to the infantry, which was clearing away a maze of obstacles over miles of sandy minefields and entanglements, and to the air forces which have been hammering relentlessly for a week or more at the Axis forward positions.

The British communique did not mention tanks, reporting merely that Allied forces had defended their position in the Axis defenses with the obvious intention of pushing along the armored units for a wide-open contest with Rommel.

The Allied air forces were so completely in command of the air on land and sea that they did extra duty against Axis counter-attacks on the ground.

In all the intensified battle of the Mediterranean yesterday the Allies downed more than twenty planes at the cost of ten of their own. Sixteen of the Axis craft were shot down over the desert, two more while trying to cover enemy sea transport along the coast and three more in the remote but vital fighting over Malta.

Air Force Active
A mixed air force of Americans, British and South Africans caught an enemy convoy trying to slip along the coast from Derna to Tobruk yesterday and delivered a concentrated attack with high-level, medium and fighter-bombers.

Christian Transfers Conduct of Government To Prince Frederick

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) Oct. 27. (AP)—King Christian X of Denmark, seriously ill after a fall last week from a horse, today transferred the conduct of the government to Crown Prince Frederik, a Copenhagen dispatch said.

The 72-year-old king's condition was unchanged during the day. "His strength improved somewhat towards evening, but there was no decisive turn for the better," the dispatch said.

Today Is Twentieth Anniversary Of Italy's Fascist Government

Nation Is Far From "Place in the Sun" Promised by Mussolini

(By The Associated Press)
Born of violence and expended by the sword and doses of castor oil to its opponents, Fascism came to its twentieth anniversary in Italy today (Wednesday), saddled with war and farther than ever from the "place in the sun" so proudly promised by Benito Mussolini.

It was on Oct. 28, 1922, that the Black Shirts, Fascist legionaries, marched on Rome (Mussolini himself entered by train) shouting bombastic boasts of a reincarnation of the glory of the ancient Roman empire.

But today was only a somber day of reckoning for Italy's people who have lived through twenty years of Fascist war and preparations for war—and unrealized promises.

No Glory for Army
There was no glory for the armies of Il Duce—"the chief"—once called Europe's most benevolent dictator but now a deluded little man reduced to the stature of Gaudier to another dictator named Hitler.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—

(AP)—American troops on Guadalcanal have beaten back an enemy thrust which penetrated their lines, while their fighting comrades in the sea-air struggle have inflicted heavy damage on enemy warships, a Navy communique disclosed tonight.

The communique gave this picture of the fierce and unremitting fight for the Solomons:

Ashe:
"During the night of October 25-26 (Solomon Islands time) enemy troops were active on Guadalcanal and succeeded in piercing our lines on the South side of the airfield. Army troops threw back the attack and regained their positions. Marine troops were active on the Western flank and reported small gains in heavy fighting."

Two Jap Destroyers Sunk
At Sea:
Two Japanese destroyers were sunk; a battleship was hit; a cruiser was badly damaged, a destroyer was damaged. New hits were scored on two previously damaged cruisers and an American torpedo found its way into the hull of a previously damaged enemy aircraft carrier.

Military men emphasized the extreme importance of the fighting ashore. Marines and army men were apparently determined to hold the airfield on Guadalcanal at all costs. This flying field, constructed by and seized from the Japanese, was called the key to all the fighting.

Should it be lost, it was said, the American cause might suffer an irreparable blow for it had a bearing upon both the land and sea fighting. Some of the planes which sank or damaged enemy war vessels were operating from Guadalcanal. In one instance planes believed based there came quickly to the rescue of two American minesweepers, which had been engaged by three Japanese destroyers near Guadalcanal. Two of the latter were sunk.

At sea, the Japanese apparently had fairly secure control of the sealanes in and around the Solomons, for an enemy destroyer penetrated close enough to Tulagi harbor to sink the United States Fleet Tug Seminole and an harbor patrol boat—the only American ship losses announced in today's communique.

WLB and Treasury To Share Salary And Wage Control

Jan. 1 Fixed as Date for Limitation of Salaries to $25,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, issued regulations today placing control over all wages and salaries under $25,000 in the War Labor Board and the Treasury and fixing January 1, 1943, as the date beyond which salaries will be limited to $25,000 a year after taxes and certain allowances.

The regulations also placed the $25,000 ceiling over public salaries as well as private ones, except salaries specifically fixed by federal or state statute.

President Is Exception
However, President Roosevelt is the only federal employee paid a statutory salary exceeding $25,000. Despite the exception Byrnes told reporters the president had advised the Treasury that future payments of his salary be made in compliance with the limitation.

A summary of the regulations said the following will be brought under the war labor board.

Wage payments and salaries not in excess of $5,000 "where such an employee is represented by a duly recognized or certified labor organization or where the employee is not (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Maryland Survivors of Wasp Tell Of Efforts To Save Carrier

Ship Virtually Lifted Out of Water by Explosion Penrod Says

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27. (AP)—Maryland survivors of the Aircraft Carrier Wasp, torpedoed and sunk in the Solomons by enemy submarines, told today of the orderly efforts of the crew to save the ship and credited the coolness and quick-thinking of Captain Forrest P. Sherman and a chief machinist mate with saving the lives of many of the men.

Harry I. Penrod, aviation chief ordnance officer, said "only the presence of mind of the captain, who ordered the carrier thrown into reverse immediately, pulled us away from the oil pouring from the fore-front of the ship and flaming on the water."

Account Shows Railways, War Plants and Utilities Were To Be Destroyed

CHICAGO, Oct. 27. (AP)—The story of how eight Nazi saboteurs were carefully trained to destroy American war plants, rail lines and utilities was told in full detail today by one of the German agents.

The account was given by Ernest Peter Burger, a graduate of the Reich's Brandenburg school of sabotage, at the federal court trial of six Chicagoans charged with treason.

War Casualties Listed at 47,463

Announcement by Army, Navy Includes Those Killed, Wounded, Missing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—America's army and navy casualties announced to date total 47,463 killed, wounded and missing.

Captain Leland P. Lovette, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Public Relations, said in a Navy day speech today that the navy, marine corps, and coast guard have lost a total of 18,144 of whom 4,453 were killed, 1,693 wounded and 9,788 missing.

A check of army records disclosed that 31,649 casualties have been announced, of whom the majority were the 17,500 Americans and 11,000 Philippine scouts of the United States Army missing in action in the Philippines. Most of these probably were taken prisoner by the Japanese on Bataan and Corregidor. In addition there were large numbers of Philippine Commonwealth Army troops killed or captured, of whom the army has no record.

Aside from these, the army lists 1,016 killed in action, 1,461 wounded, 61,000 prisoners of war and 611 missing in action in combat zones in all parts of the world, including the Philippines.

AP Says Access

which has been achieved by the operation of AP under the control of its members, could not survive the transition of such members to the role of mere customers purchasing news on a price basis.

The AP said that it was organized to make possible the dissemination of unbiased news and "the cooperative character of its organization has been and is directly responsible for the accomplishment of such purpose and rendering by AP of a service which the government itself acknowledges to be of vital importance to the national welfare."

The impartial and unbiased character of AP news, the answer continued, was assured by the fact a cross section of opinion existed among members and by the fact this membership had the power "to invoke disciplinary action against any member who departs from the standard of integrity in reporting and publishing AP news."

The answer of approximately 7,000 words comprised a general denial of the government's complaint of 14,000 words filed in a civil action here August 28.

Asserting that freedom of the press was fundamental law and with it the right of newspapers to choose their own associates in collecting and distributing the news, the answer said "this right is now challenged by the means of a novel interpretation of the anti-trust statute, which is designed to foster a particular newspaper, to wit, the Chicago Sun."

The membership application of Marshall Field's Chicago Sun was rejected by a vote of 684 to 287 by AP members at their latest annual meeting in April.

The AP reply said rejection of the application was due largely to three obstacles erected by Field and representatives of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice. "The first obstacle," the answer outlined, "was the fact that Field, coincident with his so-called application for membership, charged that the AP was engaged in a conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws. In substance, Field's action was a threat of litigation and not a bona fide application for membership in AP."

The other obstacles cited were the fact that Field admitted he had not acquired the mechanical plant with which to publish his paper and therefore there was no reasonable assurance of permanence of publication; and that between the time the application was filed and the membership met to vote on it, interrogations of AP members by Department of Justice anti-trust agents caused the members to believe there was an attempt to intimidate the association.

The answer further held that Field, by reason of deduction from income tax payment of losses sustained by his publication, had deprived the government of large revenues and "enjoys a corresponding subsidy at government expense which places him at a great advantage over other newspaper owners . . . who do not enjoy such a subsidy."

Denying the government's charge that the AP by-laws restrict competition, the answer asserted there could be no monopoly with respect to the sources of news.

losses then and later—and that "this war is far from over."

"But, we have inflicted heavy losses on the enemy," he said, "and we will push him more and more and to the limit, x x x When the smoke has finally cleared, the United States Navy will be on the surface and the Axis sea-power will be, where it belongs, at the bottom of the sea."

Thrust Which

parently were playing hide-and-seek in the general neighborhood of the Archipelago, and occasionally joining action.

Results Not Conclusive Those in a position to know said that the results of the battle were still far from conclusive and that it continued unabated.

The sinking of the Seminole and the patrol boat occurred on the morning of Oct. 25. The Japanese destroyer hardly escaped unscathed, however. American shore batteries scored three hits on the vessel. Then Grumman "Wildcats" Navy fighting planes from Guadalcanal strafed and further damaged the destroyer.

Later in the morning, the communication continued, an American flying Fortress set out on a searching mission. It was attacked by six Japanese Zero fighters. One Zero was shot down. The fortress returned safely.

The engagement between the mine sweepers and the destroyers occurred near Guadalcanal. Out-gunned by the very nature of the battle, the mine sweepers apparently radioed to the Guadalcanal airfield for assistance.

Navy and Marine corps dive-bombers responded, and two of the three Jap destroyers went to the bottom.

Jap Cruiser Hit

On the morning of October 26, United States bombers and fighters, again from Guadalcanal, sought out and found an enemy flotilla of cruisers and destroyers, which had been originally attacked on the preceding day. They scored a direct hit on one of the Japanese cruisers, believed here to have been a cruiser crippled in the previous day's fighting and previously reported damaged.

During the night of Oct. 26-27, Navy planes attacked in enemy force 400 miles northeast of Guadalcanal. This force also had been under attack before. It included one of the aircraft carriers which a communique yesterday said had been damaged. This was hit by an aerial torpedo and is badly damaged. In this action, too, a cruiser was "badly damaged," and a battleship was hit. Neither of these vessels was included in the previous announcements.

A recapitulation of American and Japanese losses in the Solomons campaign as announced from day to day by the Navy showed the following score:

Ships Sunk: One American aircraft carrier; three American and one Japanese heavy cruiser; six American and eight Japanese destroyers; three Japanese and one American transports. Three American Auxiliary transports.

Ships Probably Sunk: Two Japanese destroyers; one Japanese transport.

Ships damaged: Four Japanese and one American aircraft carrier; two Japanese and no American battleships; five Japanese, seventeen Japanese and no American light cruisers; ten Japanese and two American destroyers. Seventeen other Japanese vessels and "several other" American ships.

In addition, the Australian cruiser Canberra was sunk. It should be borne in mind in connection with these figures that the Navy department customarily makes no announcement of American naval losses until it is sure that they are known to the enemy.

At his press conference in late afternoon President Roosevelt refrained from predicting either victory or defeat in the Solomons campaign, saying that the outcome was not clear.

He thus echoed the words of Secretary of the Navy Knox, who told reporters earlier in the day that American forces were "putting up a game, splendid fight" but the Japanese "have a lot of strength" and the results are not yet clear.

Mr. Roosevelt quoted approvingly a headline in the Washington Evening Star, and indicated it told the story accurately. It was simply, he pointed out, that "Battle Rages in Solomons." He added that he did not know whether he would use the adjective "decisive."

Attack Aleutian Bases While awaiting direct word of new developments in the Solomons, the navy announced that American planes raided the Japanese "camp area and submarine base" at Kiska, in the Aleutians, on Oct. 23 and 24.

"During the above raids," a communique said, "Japanese anti-aircraft shore batteries were active, but no enemy planes were seen. A number of hits in the target areas were observed, but the extent of damage could not be determined."

The Knox press conference followed closely upon the navy's announcement that the Aircraft Carrier Wasp had been sunk in the Solomons, that another American carrier had been severely damaged, that a destroyer had been sunk and lesser damage done to other American warships—all this, excepting the case of the Wasp, in the fighting of the last few days. In the same period, two Japanese carriers and three cruisers were damaged.

Knox said that the action in the Solomons was "a damned, tough, stiff fight" that was "still going on." A reporter asked him whether this was not the blackest Navy day in the nation's history.

"Now wait a minute," Knox excitedly interrupted. "In some respects this is the most notable Navy day in history. The Navy never has put up a gamer fight than it is putting up right now. I am not foreshadowing results—I am certainly not foreshadowing defeat."

Another reporter inquired how it was possible for the Japanese to continue to take ships into the Solomons area. Knox's only reply was:

Not Using Old Ships

"What is going on out there is a war of attrition."

Asked if he had any comment to add to the navy's announcement of the loss of the Wasp, he replied that he had not but wanted to point out that "the Wasp was engaged in convoy duty, escorting reinforcements and protecting our line of communications."

A Japanese claim that four United States carriers and a battleship had been sunk he dismissed as "another of their fishing expeditions."

At Cleveland, Vice Admiral Richard S. Edwards said at a press conference that both Japan and the United States were hesitant to send their old battleships, of First World War vintage, into action.

Except for the Battle of Midway, sea engagements in the Pacific thus far have been merely "outpost skirmishes by screening forces," said Admiral Edwards, who is chief of staff to Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet.

Asserting that in his opinion there would be no showdown in the immediate future between main fleets of the United States and Japan, he added:

"When new battle units of superior tonnage, armor and armament, particularly anti-aircraft weapons which still are in the stage of development, are ready, our battle plans will be ready for them."

thousands of them, in the gaudy uniform of Hitler's gestapo and the realization that the war, instead of being won as Mussolini thought when he stabbed France in the back on June 10, 1940, was only started.

The British Air Force gave them a reminder of what lay ahead with the heaviest air raids of the war against Italian industries last week. Milan, Genoa, Turin, Savona, all bear great new scars left by these attacks and hundreds of victims lie in fresh-turned graves.

Lengthening casualty lists from north Africa, where thousands upon thousands of young Italians already have died or been taken prisoners, are resulting from the new Allied offensive in that desert theater.

Press Gives Pep-talks For weeks the Fascist press has been pep-talking about so-called Fascist achievements. One illustration, by Mussolini's Il Popolo D'Italia, showed a blackshirt prodding the feet of a huge Russian Bear with a crowbar and underneath were Mussolini's words: "If there had not been a march on Rome, today there would not be a march on Moscow."

The press has made much of public works expenditures totaling 33,000,000,000 lire (the lire has about the same value as an American five-cent piece) during the past twenty years. But it has failed to mention that these outlays were dwarfed by a total public debt of 314,558,000,000 lire as of March 31. Italy's total war expenditure for 1938-39 was 39,580,000,000 lire which was met by tax income of about 27,000,000,000 or about seventy per cent of the war budget.

Since then war expenditures skyrocketed to 118,000,000,000 lire for 1941-42 when income was 98,000,000,000 lire, or only thirty-two per cent of the war outlays.

From Italy comes word that the question heard more and often now is: "Why does this war continue?"

African Empire Lost Thus far Italy has lost all her African empire except Libya, Gibraltar and Suez, which the Italian people have been told imprisoned them in the Mediterranean "prison" still are in British hands, and tiny Malta still stands despite more than 3,000 Axis air raids.

In the Greek campaign Mussolini was rescued by Germany. Victories of Nazi Marshal Rommel in Africa don't mean anything to Italians. They remember his words: "What I've done could be done only with German soldiers."

In the Balkan "sphere of Italian influence" hundreds of Fascists are killed each month by Yugoslav and Greek patriots.

Most dispiriting to the Italians is that they are at war with the United States, the country which for many of them represented the promised land.

employed in a bona fide executive, administrative or professional capacity. Byrnes interpreted this to mean that all other salaries, including those getting under $5,000 and not employed in a bona fide executive, administrative or professional capacity, would come under the jurisdiction of the Treasury.

Deductions Permitted

On the $25,000 a year limit, the regulations permit deductions of federal income taxes on the whole salary, additional credits to take care of customary charitable contributions where the recipient of the salary has no other sources of income which can be utilized for this purpose without undue hardship, and allowances where made to take care of payments on life insurance policies and fixed obligations which were in force on October 3, 1942.

Where a person has more than one employer, all his salaries will be totaled to arrive at the $25,000 limit.

While the $25,000 limit was delayed until January 1, the regulations provide that increases in salaries at this level in the meantime without the approval of the Treasury are forbidden along with other salary increases.

scale surface engagement of the war early today, a forty-minute night battle of torpedoes and shells.

Three American cruisers and one Australian cruiser were sunk and one American destroyer was damaged. It was not yet known how many enemy ships were sunk or damaged.

The Japanese were attempting to attack transports from which United States marines had been landing on Tulagi and Guadalcanal since early morning of August 7 but they never succeeded in penetrating to the inner harbor.

Lieutenant R. M. Bruning, San Leandro, Calif., witnessed the battle from the bridge of a United States ship. Bruning's story follows:

"On the afternoon of the eighth we received word that one Japanese cruiser and two destroyers were north of us heading in our direction. Our ships were disposed accordingly.

Flares Illuminate Area

"I turned in at about 8:30 p. m. on a cot and was awakened by the general alarm gong, a loud startling clang. I looked at the clock, saw it was 1:45 a. m., and thought it was awful damn early to get up. I pulled off my pajamas and dressed.

"There were several brilliant white flares in the sky illuminating the entire area. Evidently the Japs had dropped them from cruiser planes and thus took us by surprise, enabling them to get in the first punch.

"We were headed Northwest toward Savo island while flares were behind us toward Tulagi harbor. The cruiser Canberra was about 250 yards ahead of us off our starboard beam. Large flames were shooting up from its middle stack. The clouds of the previous two days had cleared and with stars shining we could see Savo island as soon as flares died down after about three minutes.

"Over to the Northward of Savo island where our three cruisers had been there was terrific firing. Two ships were shooting at each other apparently at point blank range. Long solid tongues of flame shot out from each ship and beyond them were the streaks of tracer bullets. Each ship was hitting the other. I could tell the ships were close together by the flat trajectory of the firing.

Torpedoes Avoided "A searchlight came on briefly and then went off. It was from the destroyers which was out in front of us off Savo island. The destroyer started firing at some ship and trep ship fired back.

"We fired for about five minutes, then ceased since it appeared that our shells were endangering our own ships. We headed in toward Tulagi harbor.

"Behind us the Canberra was still burning. As we turned away there was a tremendous explosion over Northward of Savo which I learned later was the Vincennes which blew up.

"I checked up on what was happening and learned that the officer on watch had seen flares and then a torpedo's wake. We turned right and avoided torpedoes, the left to avoid more.

"Meanwhile the firing was gradually slackening and finally died out after about forty minutes. The sky now was overcast and thunder and lightning started.

"Two hours later about daylight we went back to investigate firing and an explosion which had been observed South and West of Savo island, apparently one of our destroyers shooting at a Jap destroyer.

Astoria Scuttled "The Canberra still was burning and at 6:30 a. m., we steamed over. The Australian cruiser was listing twenty degrees to starboard and there was a series of small explosions like shells from amidships. The explosions sent debris flying through the air. Members of the Canberra crew were climbing down her port side on ropes to boats and rafts.

The Canberra's turrets were all trained to the port side to counteract the list.

"Two destroyers came up and

Former Resident Reported To Have Died in Jap Prison

A former Cumberland and Midland boy, William B. Stueben, a nephew of Mrs. William Fair, 879 Patterson avenue, has died after his capture by the Japanese in the Philippines, according to word received here by Mrs. Fair from the soldier's grandmother, Mrs. Emma Stueben, Pittsburgh.

Stueben, who enlisted nearly three years ago when only 18, was at Clark Field, Manila, when the war began. He attended St. Joseph's parochial school, Midland, and moved to Cumberland with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Fair, and then went to live with an uncle in Atlantic City where he enlisted. His father is dead.

look off the Canberra's crew. We picked up one lonesome Australian sailor with a heavy red beard. He had been blown from the Canberra by a shell.

"Over to the Northward we could see the smoke of burning ships. Later they came into the harbor. It was the Astoria and a destroyer. The Astoria had bad fires below the deck and was later beached and scuttled.

"About 9 a. m., there was another tremendous explosion to the West of Savo which shot up big black clouds of smoke. We did not know what it was but hoped our planes were bombing Japanese ships.

"We heard later that thirty officers were saved from the Quincy which had sunk some time during the night but did not learn how many more might have been saved."

County Road Workers Get Increase in Pay From Commissioners

An increase in wages was voted for county road and maintenance employees yesterday by the Allegheny county commissioners. The increase is five cents an hour for laborers and ten cents an hour for foremen and equipment operators.

Members of the commission discussed the plan to increase salaries of these employees several months ago, and it was suggested to the state roads commission. State road employees recently received the pay raise and yesterday county commissioners voted to extend the raise in the county. The increase applies to county employees working on roads and bridges under state supervision.

under bomb and torpedo hits. Other unspecified damage was inflicted on the convoy, which was escorted by four destroyers and many planes. Two Heinkels were shot down and two others were damaged.

Although the Allies were clearly superior in the air, there was a marked increase in enemy plane activity, high-lighted by a dive-bomber raid at dusk last night on the British forward positions.

deck and a group of other fighters and bombers had just taken off. The skipper made one effort to save the carrier by turning her at the critical moment while we were handling planes on deck—but booo! A minute or so probably would have saved us."

Ship Lifted Out of Water

"The ship virtually lifted out of the water. There was one explosion when the first torpedo struck, apparently in our magazine right beneath me. The deck heaved. I fell on my knees and tried to get up. There were two more explosions as the other torpedoes struck. The deck heaved and quivered. My life jacket was blown off.

"You would have thought there would have been confusion. There wasn't. Damage control squads showed up with fire hose. Everybody took orders and we went to work to get the fire out and save the ship. Some removed debris from the flight deck. Others took care of wounded and injured."

At least sixteen Baltimoreans were aboard the Wasp.

Electrician's Mate Willard Hawkins told how one airplane was pushed overboard to keep it from burning and exploding and how a tractor raced "at forty miles an hour down the deck towing a blazing plane. The tractor driver kept right on aft, leaped just in time, and sent tractor and plane together over the side."

All the survivors told of internal explosions that followed the torpedoes.

"The gasoline in the hangar deck exploded," said Hawkins, "blowing out the starboard side and taking one half the starboard funnel. Fuel lines were broken and burning oil was flowing over the flight deck."

Penrod said "the explosions kept right on during the three hours or so we fought to save the Wasp. Part of the deck was rolled up. Part of it blew past the bridge where Captain Sherman directed operations."

"I grabbed another life jacket, but found a shipmate who couldn't swim and gave that one to him. None of us had time to get below to get our things or equipment."

Many Submarines Near "We knew we were in the midst of a pack of submarines, gunning for destroyers near us. The destroyers couldn't get close to help us because of having to maneuver to escape the criss-cross pattern of foam that traced the torpedoes which the subs were letting go in every direction. The explosions in the Wasp also made it dangerous for the destroyers to come up.

"Some of the men were thrown into the water. There were plenty who couldn't swim, but they swam that afternoon. You could see some of the good swimmers in the water showing others how to take simple strokes."

"About an hour or so before we were torpedoed, our planes had shot down a Japanese plane about twelve miles away from us. We knew that plane had steered the subs to our location. We knew subs had been operating a long time in that area and had expected an attack before, but we never were attacked by planes."

"Hell, no Jap planes got close to us. Our planes were up there every day knocking them down."

"Finally, after we had fought for about three hours to save her, the captain ordered us to abandon the Wasp. I had got hold of a mattress and a piece of rope. I slid down a rope into the water and a shipmate and I tied ourselves to that mattress to keep from sliding off. We were pretty tired and it was getting dark. We didn't know whether we would be picked up that night."

"We had been in the water about an hour when a destroyer came alongside and got us. We were about the last ones picked up. We were thankful to get on board that ship."

Mother Baffled By Youngster, 7, Who Sets Fires

Dr. Myers Advises Making Dangerous Habit Distasteful to Boy

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"I am having a terrible time with my seven-year-old son," a letter reads. "The first thing I don't know how to cope with is lighting matches and setting fire to things. I keep my matches above the sink, and supposed that if he always saw them there he would not touch them, but he takes them and sets fires to papers around the neighborhood."

"The other night we were at his aunt's and he went to the kitchen and set fire to the fly swatter hanging on the wall and it set fire to the wood. I showed him how he might have burned the house down. I don't know what I am going to do with him."

"The second thing he has been doing is taking money from my purse and then lying about it. My purse I also have around in sight of him. What can I do to break him of these terrible habits? I am almost afraid to leave him in a room alone. I'm desperate and completely baffled."

The Doctor's Reply

Setting fires may become a very fascinating experience for a youngster, especially after he has had the thrill of creating great excitement in those who appear to be helpless against such frights and perils. Apparently the lad has had many such thrills. Undoubtedly he knows the mother is baffled, and the knowledge eggs him on to more fire-setting.

In writing this mother, I advised her that her first task was to keep matches from the lad, even if she had to carry them with her. Also, she must make fire-setting distasteful instead of attractive. Therefore, to go with the lad to a large, safe open place and compel him to start one small fire after another continuously for several hours might be effective. Also if he received a flogging every time immediately after he started a fire the results would be good.

Make Him Feel Loved

Coupled with the theft, this fire-building might indicate unwholesome attitudes toward his mother. He can hardly feel emotionally secure and a worthy member of his family group.

From the letter we learn that the lad is put on trial when taking money from the tempting purse. No doubt there often are similar trials over his escapades with matches. While this is the way most parents do, it is about the best way to practice a child in deceit. Explaining and talking and emotional orgies over these misdemeanors make the lad worse.

Along with my letter to this mother, I enclosed in her self-addressed stamped envelope my special bulletin on "Honesty and Truthfulness."

The Preposterous Gouging Of Maryland Taxpayers

THE PLEA that the exorbitant state income tax is necessary doesn't stand up very well.

Three months ago, J. Millard Tawes, the state comptroller, announced that the state income tax would again yield the $8,440,000 goal set for it.

The yield has exceeded that goal, and the surplus in the state treasury has continued to pile up.

Theodore R. McKeldin, Republican nominee for governor, reports that another million has been added to the $9,000,000 surplus reported a short while back.

When the governor and his legislature prepared the state budget for 1942, they are said to have calculated the prospective surplus at $2,200,000.

In view of these figures, the plea that the outrageous income tax must be continued, or if reduced it must be merely shaved, seems silly.

About the only excuse the governor and his administrationists have been able to find is that normal revenue yields from gasoline and liquor taxes will run low.

But those reductions are not running as large as some have feared. No alarming reduction in liquor license yields has been reported.

Tax-yielding gasoline and oil must continue to be used in the state by the armed forces, its auxiliaries and the various war plants, while operation of essential civilian motor vehicles will continue along with restricted use of private cars now in use.

Furthermore, state economies in non-essentials could be made and long since should have been effected.

The figures on the face show that the income tax is not necessary. The Republican state platform has regarded with liberality the representations made by the governor as to possible losses of revenues, and has demanded "a fifty per cent decrease in the present tax on both earned and investment income during the period of extraordinary war needs, with a view to the later abolition of the tax."

But Mr. McKeldin insists that there is no need for any part of this outrageous tax. "A surplus of $10,000,000 has been created," he says, adding that this surplus "clearly demonstrates the utter lack of any necessity for continuing any state income tax."

Only two reasons have been found for continuation of this shameful and preposterous tax. McKeldin has noted them. One is that the governor "must have revenue for his political program and the multiplication of jobs for his supporters"; the other is that he "also desired to create a surplus so that when nomination and election time rolled around he could boast of his financial management of the state's affairs."

But, considering the oppressive cumulative burdens the taxpayers of Maryland have been facing and the additions that are coming by reason of the vast war program, this piece of extravagance for the political aggrandizement of an individual is clearly something that Maryland taxpayers just cannot afford. As a matter of fact, there is no good reason for indulging in it at any time.

A Change That Is Needed

AN IRRESISTIBLE TIDE appears surging Republicanism throughout the nation, and the prospects are that a salutary change will be effected by the people in the national House of Representatives.

Good reasons obtain why there should be such a change, but the principal one is that it will speed the winning of the war.

It will assure efficient expenditure of the huge sums involved and it will assure a drastic reduction of all nonessential spending. These are highly important to all citizens by reason of the exceedingly heavy taxes they are being called upon to bear in order to help pay for the great war program.

Thirty additional Republican seats in the House working with the real Democrats would constitute a positive check against the New Dealers.

Fifty-four additional seats would give the Republicans a majority in the House and control of the important committees, including the highly important Ways and Means committee and the Appropriations committee, which hold the purse strings of the government.

Hence, the more seats gained by the Republicans the better.

All polls show that the Republicans are gaining. But to achieve success, every Republican must help get out the vote and elect the Republican nominees. Here in Allegany county and elsewhere in the Sixth congressional district, the situation is a challenge to Republicanism. Election of a Republican in this district is essential to help effect the salutary change needed our national government. Let every effort be exerted, therefore, toward the election of J. Glenn Beall to the House.

The Blockade Recipe For Defeating Japan

RAY CROMLEY, who covered Japanese economic developments for the Wall Street Journal for a number of years, was interned in Tokyo at the outbreak of the war and only recently returned home with other American repatriates, lists Japan's weaknesses as follows:

Shortages of iron, copper, lead, zinc and proteins.

Extended shipping lines and poor railroads which can be attacked to snarl transportation.

Inability to get along with conquered peoples. Overwillingness to sacrifice men in gaining victory.

The Japanese people, says Cromley, are susceptible to disease, their routine mind is unable to adjust itself to new situations and they are suspicious, tricky, flashy, inconsistent. They are overconfident in a victorious phase and likely to overplay their hand.

None of these factors is seen by Mr. Cromley as likely to assure a short war in the Pacific unless America presses a blockade and knowledge of other Jap weaknesses to the utmost. He believes that a shorter approach than the one by the way of the Solomons and New Guinea is called for.

The Aleutians constitute the shortest route. This writer thinks that by pushing west alone the Aleutians to the Kuriles, America would be within 900 miles of Tokyo and able with bombing planes and submarines to blockade Japan so effectively that its collapse would be brought months, if not years, nearer.

The blockade method is logical and doubtless will have to be followed in due time, which means, of course, as soon as it is possible to do so on the score of readiness.

The Pentant For Reprisals

THE NAZIS threaten "extreme and drastic" reprisal measures if the British follow Russian suggestions and try Rudolf Hess for his war crimes.

It isn't quite clear what the Nazis are worried about because the British have exhibited no eagerness to try Hess. The British have pointed out, for example, that when Hess flew to Scotland and was captured, the Russians and Germans still were allies. Furthermore, at the time of Hess's flight the Nazis said he was mentally unbalanced. If this is true, it would seem to render him immune from trial—unless the Allies proceed on the theory that all Nazis are mentally unbalanced and liable for treatment as criminally insane.

An outstanding Nazi attitude these days seems to be a penchant for reprisals. The Nazis threaten or take reprisals at the slightest provocation. They seem oblivious to the fact that no group of barbarians under the sun ever deserved real reprisals more richly than they do.

Isn't it possible that they ever have moments when they contemplate the consequences of defeat? If they do, they do not need much imagination to figure out the eventualities.

Clothes rationing should prove beneficial to those would-be fashion plates with a tendency to overdress.

First the vest disappeared. And now rapidly vanishing is the meat gravy that used to land on it.

Men and Women

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Some men are interested only in women. Other men pity or despise such men because they live in a world that is narrowed to a single sex. They know nothing of that warm companionship that links the average man to his fellow and enriches the relationship of man with man.

When they are talking to a man on the street, their eyes follow every woman who passes. They are restless in the company of men but their eyes brighten, their spirits lift, they assume a conquering air when a woman comes into the room.

Then, and then only, is the man himself—that centered, seeking, traitorous self that is interested only in woman and never knows the friendship of man.

Sometimes I have wondered what women think of such men, if they really understand them, if they know how other men feel about them. They fall in love with them and marry them, but do they respect them as they respect those common ordinary fellows who like to go to stag dinners and who grow restless on too steady a fare of female companionship?

I think they do not. I think they understand that it is not trivial jealousy that makes men despise the "lady killer" and that they know it is something stronger and finer and healthier than that.

Some women are interested only in men. They live for them alone. They do not know what to say to other women. They, too, are restless when no men are about—and they make no secret of their distaste for women. But when they are with men, they come alive. They are gay and flirtatious. They are bright and sweet, excited and stimulating. They talk about other women, they "tell on them." They twine and envelop and allure; they tell men they wish they were men because women are such weak, vain, untrustworthy creatures. There's no "sex solidarity" in them at all and it's little wonder that other women do not trust them.

Women see through them and cannot understand why the men are fooled at all by such women. But the men ARE charmed and delighted and they praise these women openly to their women friends. They praise them and when the other women are cold or smile mysteriously, they think jealousy is afoot, and they murmur to themselves: "All women are cats."

But that isn't true. All women are not jealous cats, but all women understand the woman who is untrue to her sex.

There is one kind of man and one kind of woman, and neither kind knows the meaning of Real Friendship—until they do, they will both be alone and restless and distrusted by their own sex.

Adm. Edward C. Kalbfus, USN, retired, president of the Naval War College and commander of the naval operating base at Newport, R. I., has been ordered to duty on the general board of the navy in Washington. The board is composed of eminent retired navy men who act as an advisory board to the secretary of the navy.

Manpower Problem Gets General and Chiefs in Tangle

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Brig. Gen. Brehon Somervell has stepped on a couple of important toes which happen to be sensitive.

Those of War Production Director Donald Nelson and Manpower Director Paul McNutt.

It seems that Gen. Somervell's old tangle with Mr. Nelson on the distribution of war materials and the various intricacies of unresolved conflicting powers between the War department and WPB, has been followed by a tangle with Mr. McNutt over the man-power draft policies.

As a matter of fact, Mr. McNutt was none too assertive in his appearance before the Senate committee on the man-power problem. Very significantly, he said that he would only present a report to the president, and broadly suggested that he did not propose to speak for the administration.

Views Not Approved

His strong views for an arbitrary draft have never been approved by any other authority in the government, and there is every indication that Mr. Roosevelt will recommend another course, in which case both Gen. Somervell and Mr. McNutt might find their current argument purely academic.

Gen. Somervell is an old associate of Harry Hopkins from WPA days in New York, but Mr. Hopkins has not been seen around up front much lately.

Mr. McNutt is the most prominent, if not the only, presidential candidate for 1934 yet in the field, as far as the front pages are concerned.

Thus, the fate of two of the most prominent personalities of the administration are involved in the president's impending decision on the critical man-power problem.

Queer Jap Propaganda

The Japs seem to be playing some kind of new oriental fan tan with the Tokyo propaganda lately, to turn up publicly with eight prisoners from the Doolittle raid, seven months after they were captured, seemed a strange circumstance in itself, but to announce that these men had confessed they had orders to bomb non-military objectives, such as schools, churches and hospitals, is an absurdity which even the Japanese cannot expect anyone to believe.

Some uniformed civilians might believe these various stories put out by both sides, blatantly and continuously, by Hitler and the Japs, that churches, schools, hospitals and such are being savagely destroyed by us and the British.

But, any thinking person can see that no one carries a bomb into enemy territory at great effort and expense to waste it on such inconsequential (militarily) objectives.

Foolish Waste

Such objectives may be hit occasionally when they are near railroad tracks, shipyards or oil refineries, but when they are hit, it is a very inefficient and foolish mistake of the pilot. He is just not doing the job he was sent to do.

This is the silliest of all Axis propaganda lines, obvious fiction which they only expect the very, very stupid to believe, and hardly worth the trouble of putting it out. The only mystery is why Tokyo chose to use it at this time.

The whole affair suggests the Japanese people are uneasy at the lack of favorable war news in the past few months, and that Tokyo is forced to resort to digging news out of the past, and flavoring it with fairy tales for home consumption.

Light Vote Seen

The average Washington guess is that the Republicans will gain twenty to twenty-two seats in the House this fall and five in the Senate. That probably represents a consensus of opinion among congressional and political leaders.

The Dunn survey, which is respected among business people, predicts a Republican gain of thirty to thirty-three seats, but fifty-two are needed for a Republican majority.

No one, therefore, seems to be predicting a Republican house as yet, except a few Republican leaders who have gotten together with their pencils and worked out the possibility that they might win by a majority of ten but most expect about twenty-five seats will be gained, not enough to give a Republican majority.

Some were a little afraid from one aspect they might win as control would place upon them a responsibility apt to be onerous.

Uncertainty is involved in even the best political guesses in this particular election, as no one knows how many voters will show up at the polls.

The lack of interest manifest in the primaries indicates an unprecedentedly light vote.

The Drys Will Try Again

From the Pittsburgh Press

Thanks to the leadership of Senator Barkley and to the good sense of a majority of the Senate, the Josh Lee prohibition-for-soldiers amendment has been given the whipping it deserved.

The Senate voted to refer Senator Lee's proposal to the Military Affairs committee, which already is on record as wanting no part of it.

So let us rejoice. But let's not slip into an attitude of that's-over-now-we-can-forget-about-it.

Mr. Lee and other drys, who are old enough to remember the evils of the Noble Experiment but just don't give a damn, will come knocking at the door again.

Of course, they won't propose national prohibition—at first. They will just want to protect "our boys"—who it strikes us, are themselves doing the only protecting that is of value right now. They'll use this dodge and that in trying to slip a wedge under the right of American troops and American civilians to enjoy a glass of beer or a highball.

So, just keep an eye on them. And don't forget the name of Josh Lee, the ex-boy-orator from Norman, Okla., who tried—and will try again—to ride to fame on a proposition which his colleague Senator Tydings aptly called the "Capone amendment."

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
"PAAR-FECT!"

The studio hairdresser tilted his sleek head to view the halo of curls he had arranged on Fran's head. He compared it carefully with the photograph pinned beside her on the dressing room wall. "Eet is exactly like yesterday," he cried.

Fran got up and threw off her cellophane protective covering. "It better be," she said. "I'd hate to end up in the picture singing half the song with one coiffure and the other half with another."

"I tell you something," the little man walked with her to the door. "That hair dress, she is better than Tollette Vaughn's—and she with her private hairdresser under contract from the time the picture start shooting!" He shook his head in jealous zeal as he went back to the beautiful featured player awaiting her turn.

Outside, the day was gloomy. From the narrow dressing room balcony, Fran could see the long row of studio buildings only dimly through the gray, drizzling rain. She started down the steps, pulling her raincoat over her head to protect her hairdresser. She would have to run across the alley to sound stage No. 9 where the "Always in My Heart" company was shooting.

"Wait a minute, Fran!" She turned to see Burke standing in the doorway of the men's dressing room. He joined her.

"We're to go over to the dialogue director's now. They don't need us on the set till this afternoon."

"You don't mean I'm going to have an elocution lesson on how to say my one line?" gasped Fran.

"Yep," Burke said cheerfully. "I guess so."

The dialogue director proved to be a tall, raw-boned ex-actress with a beak nose and a beautiful voice. She was waiting for them on one of the empty stages.

"You two got a break," she said. "They've whipped up quite a nice little scene for you here."

Fran dropped her raincoat onto a chair and took the typewritten pages in surprise.

"But this isn't in the script!"

"It came out of a late conference last night," the woman replied. "The director wanted a humorous episode to break a dramatic scene in the ballroom, so they're using this quick gag routine with you two. It follows your specialty number."

"Wheel!" Fran cried jubilantly. "This is the way to fame!"

They rehearsed the short scene diligently. It seemed like a simple routine, but the dialogue director was tough in the matter of tempo.

"No—no—that's too fast. It's got to build. You've got to draw that line—that's it—now faster on the come back! Faster! All right. Pick it up! That's it. Louder. Shout it! No! No! A pause. Let them wait for the top. Now—crack it!"

The tall Shakespearean-Hollywood creature was like a lion tamer, thought Fran, as she whipped out her directions. When it was finally over, Burke relaxed in his chair, his tongue hanging, his breath coming in loud gasps.

"Never again," he swore, "will I embark lightly upon the delicate interchange of quips without trembling."

The sun had come out when they left the building, and they strolled along with a group of actors, extras and technicians from one of the sound stages, all bound for the commissary. Burke waited to get a paper at the door, though Fran was fearful they wouldn't get a table. But Burke was devouring the black headlines, while he waited for his change.

"Two more Allied ships torpedoed!" he worried.

They got a table at right. Their agent was holding it for them. He'd dropped into the studio to check up on several of his clients, and he'd heard the good news about their scene. That was a break!

Fran told him about the rehearsal while Burke buried himself in the paper. The agent was delighted. "Listen," he patted Fran's hand cheerfully, "I wouldn't be surprised if you two go right on up the ladder."

"You mean it?" Fran whispered. She turned to Burke and pulled down his paper with exasperation. "Didn't you hear? Matt thinks—"

Burke grinned slyly at the two of them. "I heard what he thinks," he said. "But what does Uncle Sam think?"

"What do you mean?" cried Fran.

"I mean," said Burke, "I think he's planning a featured role for me, honey, in the Army."

Fran's eager fingers dropped from Burke's arm, the light went out of her eyes. But it returned as the agent leaned forward to whisper. "Ha—but I think I can fix that for you, too!"

"How?" Fran demanded.

"The Army has to have entertainers," the agent winked. "You and your band—you are the best type of exemptions for entertainment purposes."

Fran turned exultantly to Burke.

Donne Quintuplets Get Permanent Waves

TORONTO, Ont. 26 (AP)—The Donne quintuplets experienced the thrill every small girl looks forward to today when they had their first permanent wave.

"Is that going to happen to me?" asked Yvonne as she watched Marie's hair put in curlers.

The eight-year-old quintuplets, all of whom had their hair bobbed on their last birthday, May 28, had their permanents in preparation for their appearance in a victory loan show at Maple Leaf Gardens Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Memorial Auxiliary Seeks Girls for Nursing Careers

U. S. Public Health Service Will Help Finance Special Classes

Mrs. Mary E. Freed addressed the members of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the nurses home. She reported that the United States Public Health Service is giving grants to help finance special classes in order to increase the number of nurses.

The class of eighteen students admitted in July was granted the scholarship and the service has agreed to finance another class in February providing eighteen applicants can be obtained. Mrs. Freed urged members of the auxiliary to talk to girls interested in nursing and persuade them to contact her at the hospital immediately. Although 109 girls are in training now, Mrs. Freed stressed the need of nurses as so many are leaving for military service.

The auxiliary decided to improve the crowded conditions at the nurses home as its fall project and Mrs. Richard T. Lowndes, chairman, appointed Mrs. Harry Beneman, Mrs. Fred T. Small, Mrs. Morton Peskin, Mrs. Howard L. Tolson and Mrs. Mary E. Freed a committee to meet with Harvey Weiss to discuss the improvements.

Mrs. Lloyd R. Meyers made a final report of $530 raised by the chain card parties held to raise funds for furnishing the new wing at the hospital. The goal had been $500.

Mrs. Theodore Carlson was appointed chairman of a telephone committee and Mrs. Lowndes asks any member of the auxiliary, who will volunteer to serve on the committee to contact her as soon as possible.

Miss Nell Bane, reporting on the pediatric department, asked for donations of out-grown clothing in good condition for children from one to ten years old.

Mrs. Irving Millenson, secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Lichtenstein, treasurer, gave their reports. Approximately fifty-five members attended the meeting and were conducted on a tour of the new wing of the hospital by Mr. Weiss following the meeting.

Plans for War Work Discussed By Sorority

Mrs. Stark Reads Paper on Symphony at Delta Theta Chi Meeting

Plans for greater effort in war work were discussed at the meeting of the Maryland Alpha Chapter of Delta Theta Chi sorority held Monday evening at Central Y.M.C.A. An article in the sorority national magazine on reporting news to the papers for publicity was also noted and discussed.

Miss Jeanette Bonig reported on war work; Mrs. Helen Burk, on the social committee and Mrs. Catherine Beall gave the treasurer's report.

Carrying out the program on "Adventures with the American Orchestra," Mrs. John Stark read a paper on the Boston Symphony and played several of the symphony recordings; Mrs. Burk spoke on the Philadelphia Symphony and Miss Mary Rice on the New York Philharmonic Symphony.

Other members attending were Miss Mary Virginia Shafferman, Miss Mary Rice, Miss Corretta Davis, Mrs. Catherine Miller, Miss Naomi Teter and Mrs. Eloise Coward. The educational program for the meeting November 9 will be "Whistler, Painter of Harmonies."

George Smith, Jr., Takes Etta Haines As His Bride

Ceremony Is Performed in Parsonage of St. Mark's Church Here

Mrs. Julia Haines, 318 Estella street, announce the marriage of her daughter, Miss Etta Haines, to George W. Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith, 208 Glenhurst street.

The ceremony was performed October 26 in the parsonage of the St. Mark's Reformed church, with the Rev. Alfred L. Creager, pastor, officiating.

Miss Opal Barr and Lester Davis were the attendants.

The bride was attired in a blue crepe dress with which she wore many accessories and a shoulder corsage of tallman roses.

Her bridesmaid wore a street length dress of red, with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at 217 Glenhurst street.

GLITTER GIRL

For the gay coiffure pictured here designed by Guro, the top locks are piled high in a ringlet arrangement, with one curl escaping intriguingly over the left eye. A bunch of blue grapes—luscious looking but not for eating—are pinned with a diamond bow-knot. The back hair is parted in the center and rolled away from the part, parallel to it.

Union Grove 4-H Club Member Wins Maryland Honors

Richard Fey Finishes First in Rural Electrification Contest

Richard Fey, member of the Union Grove 4-H Club, has won the "4-H Rural Electrification" contest sponsored by the Westinghouse company and the University of Maryland. Harry H. Beggs, assistant county agent, announced yesterday.

As the state winner he will represent Maryland at the twenty-first annual 4-H Club Congress to be held in Chicago, November 29-December 2, and compete for national honors in this field. Last year he was county winner at the club week at College Park. John Hardinger is his local club leader.

The winner was judged from a record of the contestant's electrical club work, written in narrative form, and augmented by a scrap-book.

Fey's electrification projects include applying electricity to raising poultry, including the brooding of chickens, lighting poultry houses with an automatic arrangement; also laying out practical wiring diagrams for the home and buildings around the home, which means placing the outlet receptacles at convenient locations so electric appliances can be used around the home and farm and remodeling lamps to convert them into better-sight lamps. His work covers a period of three or four years.

The contest is open to all 4-H boys in the United States between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one, who do electrical work. Suggestions for the projects are made by the Extension service of the university, 4-H club leaders and by commercial organizations which send speakers and materials for demonstrations. The state winners compete for 200 college scholarships.

Miss Sara Jane Long, of LaVale Senior 4-H club was the state winner for the National Style Review, at the Victory 4-H Club Day at College Park, earlier this month.

Three or four other winners are expected to be announced in the near future.

OPA WILL PROTECT WOMEN FROM NYLON HOSE BOOTLEGGERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration took steps today to protect Miss and Mrs. America from nylon hose "bootleggers."

A shopping card that every woman can tuck in her purse when she goes hose-hunting soon will be issued, the OPA announced today. Listing the new ceiling prices on all types of nylons, the card can be obtained by writing OPA headquarters in Washington.

"With this addition to her shopping gear, a woman can take full advantage of OPA's action against the 'bootleg' prices often demanded for nylon hose in recent months," the announcement stated. "And to make her job of price-checking easier, the card will show which facts on type and quality must be marked or labeled on each pair."

Church Group Makes Gifts for Shut-ins

Members of Group No. 4, of the Women's Society of Christian Service of Central Methodist church will make gifts for "shut-ins" for Christmas and assemble articles for Christmas boxes for the boys from Central church. Plans were made at the meeting of the group yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William H. Kight, 311 Decatur street.

Mrs. Lee H. Richcreek read a paper, "The Texas Sheep Shearing," and sang a solo, "Perfect Day." Mrs. D. W. Wilcox presided at the meeting and a report was made of thirty-six visits to the sick made during the month.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess. Twelve members attended.

Cumberland Housewife Tells Secret of Good Hands

Mrs. Lewis C. Millholand, Jr. of Bowling Green, mother of three, spends a great deal of time doing war work in addition to caring for her home and family. She says, "When I first started housekeeping, I thought I needed a strong washday soap to make dishwashing easy. When my hands began to look overworked, someone told me to change to mild Ivory Soap. Zingo! Back came my smooth, white hands again!"

FUNKHOUSER ASKS FRIENDS TO VOTE FOR REVERCOMB

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 27.—Raymond J. Funkhouser, who withdrew last month from the contest for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, wants his friends to support W. Chapman Revercomb, the GOP nominee, in his fight against Governor Neely.

"I owe to all members of the Republican party," Funkhouser declared, "to my friends who loyally supported me, some of whom may feel a tinge of bitterness and disappointment which please immediately dispel, that I frankly tell them, as well as thousands of other intelligent, independent, and incorruptible voters of this State, of all party affiliations and leanings, that, in my opinion, I can look only to them to redeem this state from the terrific blight resting upon it as a result of government by inefficient, sordid, and selfish officials and servants.

"In full opposition to Neelyism in all its forms—real and sincere opposition—we have a champion in W. Chapman Revercomb. I can say most confidently that by voice and act he will exert his every power to do likewise."

restore to the citizens of West Virginia a position of respect and confidence which has long been lacking. I know he will represent this state in the Senate for the best interests of its citizens. I know from his learning, experience, and ability he will be a servant in the Senate and one in whom all of us of every political creed will be justly proud. I shall support him cheerfully and energetically. I ask my friends to do likewise."

GIRL SCOUTS HAVE A SONG FOR IT

NEW YORK — The Girl Scouts are observing Girl Scout Week, October 25 to November 1, with two major objectives, and a song to back them up.

The objectives for the 725,830 Scouts are a Victory Fund drive expected to realize a minimum of $180,000 in war savings stamps if the girls buy only one 25-cent stamp apiece and a Wing Scout program in which older girls will learn basic aviation principles, help in wartime activities, and master the intricacies of plane construction, airplane controls and other skills just short of flying.

Work for Stamps

Thus far about 1,000 girls, 15 to 18 years old, actually are engaged in the Wing Scout program. Others will have their chance as centers are organized and leaders trained.

In the Victory fund drive, the girls will buy stamps with money earned in performing chores and with money saved, but they will not solicit money.

The song the Girl Scouts will be singing is "America Needs You." It has just been dedicated to the girls by Kent Cooper, general manager of The Associated Press, who wrote both words and music. Cooper has assigned all royalty rights to the Scouts, and expressed the hope that they would "make a lot of money out of it" and urged them to "take 'America Needs You' to town."

Wrote "Dixie Girl" The song was presented last Friday night, over a NBC hookup, with a chorus of the girls singing against the background of Dr. Frank Black's orchestra.

This is the second of Cooper's songs to be published. The first was "Dixie Girl" in 1941. But several others have been presented on the radio, and Cooper has been song-writing as a hobby for many years. None but close friends knew about it until a year ago.

Mrs. Eichhorn

Will Come Tomorrow, the song her uncle sang when he was coming over the ocean to America from Scotland.

Mrs. Gertrude S. Klatte played the piano and sang several selections, "When You and I Were Young Maggie," "Dixie," "Loch Lomond" and "Auld Lang Syne."

John Miller Fined

John Miller, of Miller's farm, Big Vein mountain, near Lonaconing, was found guilty of reckless driving and fined $5.75 by Magistrate Bernard P. McPartland at a trial held in Lonaconing yesterday morning.

Trooper Charles McLane preferred the charges in investigation of a collision which occurred on East Main street Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock.

Miller was driving out of town and Ralph Metz, of Essex, near Baltimore, but who formerly lived on Jackson street, Lonaconing, was driving into the Main section when the accident occurred in front of Lowell M. Sowers's residence.

Mrs. Helen Metz Shockey, Robbins street, Lonaconing, a passenger in Ralph Metz's automobile, suffered lacerations about the face and had several teeth broken. She was taken to a physician by Hugh Terment and then to her home.

Ralph Metz, driver, also received laceration about the face. He was found not guilty.

Both cars were damaged.

AMERICA NEEDS YOU

Words and Music by Kent Cooper

OURS is a land that opened wide its gates
That men from everywhere might build a nation,
Conceived upon the plan of equality for all,
With freedom as its deep and firm foundation.
It has given much, asked little for the boon of living
Where there's opportunity.
It shall never, when assailed, have to beg or to plead
For our help so we still may be free.

DOES America mean this to you?

DO YOU thrill at living in a land so glorious?
Do you love its prairies, forests and its rivers?
Snows of its winters, flowers of its summers.
All the things of nature
That this country gives you?

DO YOU thrill at stories of its early settlers?
Prowess of its pioneers? Faith of its founders?
Valor of its soldiers and of its sailors?
All the facts of history
That record its glory?

DO YOU like the spirit of its pulsing millions?
Foresight of its planners and of its builders?
Freedom of worship, speech and of printing?
All the gifts to free men
That its laws assure you?

THEN, if you do, but only if you do,
America needs you!

IF YOU love America, America needs you!

Copyrighted 1942 B.M.I.

A chorus of Girl Scouts and Kent Cooper sang "America Needs You" under the direction of Dr. Frank Black at NBC studios. The girls introduced the song over a nationwide radio hookup.

Raccoons Grow Tough

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — This congested city has a wildlife problem on its hands, Justice George T. Sturtevant of the state supreme court complained to city officials of "vicious raccoons" in his garden. He said they had set upon "dogs and persons, my own dog and myself having been attacked."

Make Post-War Plans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Women should realize current war employment is abnormal and be prepared to go back to home-making when peace comes, Edwin A. Lee, dean of education at the University of California at Los Angeles says. He stresses the need for education looking toward post-war family life.

Correct Address On All Army Mail Insures Delivery

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"My son was inducted into the service last April, and I've been receiving letters regularly from him. But he writes that he doesn't hear from me and is worried for fear something has gone wrong at home," writes "B. G."

"How can I get word to him, and what do you think is the cause of this?" the letter asks.

Similar letters come to me from all over the country, almost every day. The only reason I can give is that the letter may have been incorrectly addressed.

Non-Delivery May Result
According to a bulletin from the War department, a survey conducted at ports of embarkation discloses that approximately ten per cent of all mail intended for delivery to members of the armed forces overseas is incorrectly or insufficiently addressed.

Improper and insufficiently addressed letters and parcels result in serious delay or non-delivery of thousands of pieces of mail.

Army postal regulations say that all mail addressed to army personnel serving outside the continental limits of the United States should clearly show:

Grade, first name in full, middle initial, and last name of person addressed, followed by his army serial number, if known.

Letter or number of the company or other similar organization of which the addressee is a member.

Designate Regiment
Designation of the regiment or separate battalion, if any, to which the company belongs.

Army post office number in care of the appropriate postmaster. The location of the overseas station should not be used.

The sender must place his name and address in the upper left corner of the envelope. And the letter must be properly stamped.

The survey revealed that in many cases letters carry only the soldier's name and A. P. O. number. It was pointed out that thousands of troops may be served through a single A. P. O., and that it is impossible to effect a delivery of mail so addressed without serious delay.

Christmas packages for soldiers overseas should be mailed between October 1 and November 1, and unless they are properly addressed it will be impossible to deliver them in time for the holidays.

Training for Draft-Age Men
Dear Miss Fairfax:
My son expects to go into the service in a year or so and would like to take some sort of training for military service. would this be possible?

M. R.

The War department, collaborating with the United States Office of Education, will begin some time this fall a voluntary pre-induction training program in schools throughout the country to train draft-age men in basic and specialized knowledge to prepare them for military service.

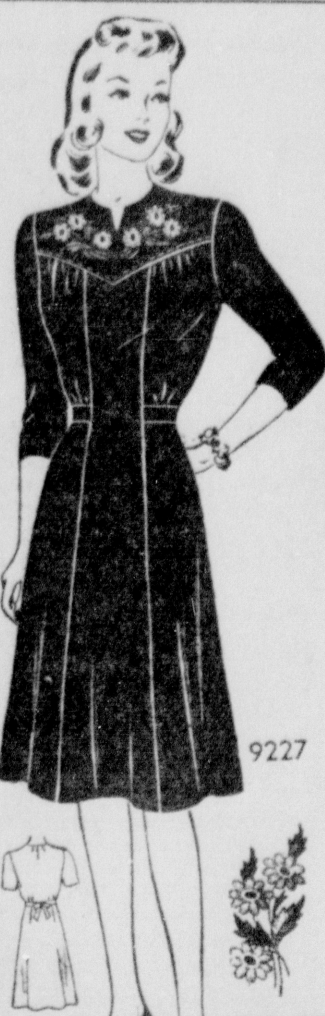

Draft-age out-of-school men, pre-draft-age high school and college students, occupational specialists and draft registrants who have been deferred by reason of educational deficiencies will be trained in schools.

Is Entitled to Allotment
Dear Miss Fairfax:
My husband and I have been married two years, but during this time I have supported myself. Now he has been inducted into the army, and I find that my expenses are more. Will I be entitled to the wife's allotment and where do I obtain the application blanks? He is overseas.

W. R. N.

Yes, you are entitled to the $50 a month paid to wives of service men. However, before you make applica-

Flower-Trimmed Yoke

MARIAN MARTIN

Especially charming for furlough lunch and dinner dates is this Marian Martin frock, Pattern 9227. There's "above-the-table interest" in slashed neckline, pointed yoke, and vivid flower embroidery that's done from a simple transfer motif.

Pattern 9227 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires three and three-eighths yards thirty-nine-inch fabric. Send sixteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Save for Victory—with our helpful new Fall and Winter Pattern Book! It's the best guide to home sewing, with smart, easy-to-sew, thrifty designs for work, play, school. Pattern Book is ten cents. Send your order to Cumberland News, Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York, N. Y.

tion for the allotment, write to your husband to make sure that duplication is not made, as that might delay action.

If he hasn't made application, you may do so by obtaining forms from your nearest Recruiting Station or by writing a letter to the commanding officer of the nearest army post or camp. Applications should be made by the soldier whenever possible, as he would be allowed six months to produce documentary proof of your marriage, while you would have to attach it to your application when you send it in.

Furlough to Draftees

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I understand that when a man is drafted he is allowed a furlough to settle his affairs. How does he go about getting this leave?

E. H.

When a service man is notified that he has been accepted for the army, he should request at the induction center the fourteen days furlough which is granted to draftees if they wish it.

Citizenship Questioned
Dear Miss Fairfax:
I had an argument with someone who said that every American soldier and sailor lost his citizenship when he entered the army or navy. Is this true?

Z. J.

Soldiers and sailors do not lose their citizenship rights when they enter the service of the United States.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 27. (AP)—If Hitler should suddenly die (wouldn't that be too bad?), Frederick has a coffin, complete with nails, ready.

The nails were added to the coffin at a weekend defense savings stamp rally sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

All told, $110.10 worth of nails were hammered into the coffin at three for a quarter for the children and two bits straight for adults.

More nails will be added at other county towns and the town raising the most money will be given the right to put an effigy of Herr Hitler in the coffin.

PORT GEORGE, G. MEADE, Md., Oct. 27. (AP)—Sewell E. Allen is fighting a political campaign by remote control.

A private in a hospital unit here, he is the democratic nominee for the state Senate in Monocacy county, Iowa, halfway across the country.

Allen was a delegate to the lower half of the Iowa legislature when he waived the deferment granted to lawmakers and enlisted at Omaha, July 2.

At the time, he already had been nominated for the Senate by the Democrats, and the party asked him to remain on the ticket. If he is successful at election time, he hopes he can get a long enough furlough to go home and introduce a couple of bills.

If not, well Senate seats in Iowa are for four years. Before that, he says, he and a few million other Yanks may have won a war.

Evening Serials Take New Spots On Radio Chains

Musical Program Will Commemorate Czech Birthday

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The two evening serials, Easy Aces and Mr. Keen, long standbys on the Blue schedule, will find themselves in new territory Wednesday night. At the same time their schedule as to hour and day also is being shifted.

The network is CBS, with the Aces at 7:30, followed by Mr. Keen at 7:45, to run Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Actually it will be a return by the Aces to vaguely familiar territory, for they broadcast on CBS from 1932 to 1934. Both in real life as well as on the air, the Aces are married. Mr. Keen, with his shift to CBS, is starting his sixth year of broadcasting.

Songs of the Centuries, CBS at 3:30 with Howard Barlow conducting, will present a program commemorating the twenty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Czech republic. Soloist is Nicholas Goldschmidt, Czech baritone.

Other Specials

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, is to discuss "War-time Distribution of Manpower" in an NBC broadcast at 1 p. m. The talk is in connection with the thirty-first National Safety Congress in Chicago. In the evening on the Blue from the same meeting Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, chief of the navy's Bureau of Ordnance, is to talk on "Accidents—Axis Ally." It will be at 10:45. . . . The National Radio Forum is scheduled for the Blue at 10:15, its regular time now.

Two special broadcasts have been added to the Wednesday schedule. They are:

CBS 5 p. m.—Graduation exercises of a thousand cadets at Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

BLUE 9 p. m.—Special Greco-American war bond program. This replaces the usual Basin street.

Listings by Networks

NBC—11:15 p. m. Sketches in Melody; 3:45 Right to Happiness, serial; 6 United States Navy Band; 7:30 Caribbean Nights concert; 8 Adventures of the Thin Man; 8:30 Tommy Dorsey orchestra; 9 Eddie Cantor and Dinah; 9:30 District Attorney drama; 10 Kay Kyser musical collage.

Adding Iodine to Diet Has Reduced Goiter Incidence to Almost Zero

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Everyone has heard of goiter countries. Once about the only one generally known was Switzerland. It was thought that goiter was prevalent there because of something in the drinking water that came off the glaciers and snow capped mountain tops. Modern medical research has shown that the cause was not something that was, but something that wasn't in the drinking water. The something that wasn't there was iodine.

We in North America were very complacent about Switzerland until it was noticed we had quite a large goiter region of our own. It extended along the Great Lakes country west along the northern border of the United States and the southern border of Canada. Like Switzerland, the surface soil of this region was laid down by the old glacier ice-cap.

The Great Lakes themselves are merely glacier lakes. The glacial soil spread over and covered all the soil laid down originally as ocean bottom; ocean bottom land is rich in iodine from the dead kelp and algae that absorbed so much iodine from the ocean water when they were alive.

This top glacial soil gives no iodine to the vegetables that grow in it, to milk, to the sources of drinking water.

The relation of iodine to goiter is very close. The body needs a small but constant amount of iodine for its functions. All of this iodine goes first to the thyroid gland, and enters into its secretion in a definite amount. If iodine is diminished in drinking water and food, the gland increases the number of its cells in order to extract as much as possible from the blood as it flows past. More cells means enlarged thyroid, which is what goiter is.

Well, it would seem normal and natural that this could be helped by adding iodine to the food in goiter regions. The procedure was tried and it worked. Adding just a little iodized salt to the food of school children cut down the goiter incidence to almost zero.

Campaign On Again

Twenty years ago this campaign was started. Then people began to forget. A goiterless generation grew up. Authorities became lax. All of a sudden a year or two ago, public health officials woke to find that goiter was on the increase again; the rate rose in Michigan from 2.2 in 1937 to 4.6 in 1938 per 100,000 population.

So the iodized salt campaign is on again. It only takes a little. The salt used is sodium iodide, which can hardly be distinguished from table salt. Three grains a day for ten consecutive days in the spring and fall are enough. Do not try to take any more.

The states where this should be done are Michigan, Northern Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Washington (possibly Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada and California), and Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Questions and Answers

M. N. S.—Please write some information about multiple sclerosis. Is heat good for it? What kind of heat—lying in the sun? Are mineral baths valuable? Should a person who is insecure on the feet force herself to walk and exercise?

Answer: Multiple sclerosis is a condition of the nervous system in which plaques, or spots, form in the spinal cord and brain. The muscles are affected, depending on where the spots form. The spots tend to come and go, so that periods of improvement occur. Heat and baths of any kind—including lying in the sun—are helpful. A person who is insecure on the feet needs rest, not exercise.

Johnny Beazley Offers Services

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 27. (AP)—Johnny Beazley, pitching hero of the 1942 World Series, has applied for placement in the navy's physical fitness program. Lieut. W. R. (JG) Walker, recruiting officer in charge of the Navy's V-5, V-7 and Seabees program here announced.

Beazley made application this afternoon, Walker said, and the request was wired to Commander Gene Tunney for permit to enlist the baseball player.

Lieut. Commander Fred R. Haselton, examining physician, found Beazley in excellent physical condition.

"I figured I could do more in the navy's program than in any branch of the service," Beazley said after being examined. "I am anxious to get in at once and wish I could leave immediately to begin work."

Evening Will Climax
Celebration

FROSTBURG, Oct. 27.—Farrady Post, No. 24, American Legion completed plans Monday evening for the twenty-fourth annual Armistice day celebration to be held here Wednesday, November 11. While the nation is engaged in World war, No. 2, the veterans decided to place special emphasis on the armistice of 1918, which signaled the end of World War I.

Father Fisher To Speak
The exercises will begin at 11 a. m. at Soldiers' monument, Post office plaza, with a program, presenting the Rev. Elmer T. Fisher, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Midland, as the principal speaker. The invocation will be offered by the Rev. Raymond W. Cooke, pastor of the Eckhart Methodist church.

A firing squad, in command of County Commissioner S. W. Green, will fire the salute and taps will be sounded by the post bugler.

Following the exercises, open house will be held at the Legion hall, Mechanic street, when refreshments will be served all American Legion members and their guests.

The closing event of the Twenty-fourth Armistice day celebration will be a banquet at the Clary Club, with the Rev. J. C. Clark, pastor of the Uniontown, Pa., Presbyterian church, as the principal speaker. The Rev. Mr. Clark is a former pastor of First Presbyterian church, this city. The invocation will be offered by the Rev. Dominic A. Bonomo, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Catholic church, this city, and vocal numbers will be by Mrs. Harry C. Ort and Prof. Maurice Matteson, head of the music department of state Teachers college, with Mrs. Matteson playing the accompaniment.

Others To Attend
Guests of honor at the banquet, which will be presided over by Edward J. Ryan, include Daniel F. McMullen, state commander; Nelson A. Le, past state commander; Roy Libby, state adjutant; Miss Anne Libby, Lonaconing, head of the child welfare department; Dr. W. O. McLane, state executive committee; and two representatives of the American Legion Auxiliary, co-sponsors of the celebration, Mrs. Harry Vogel, Cumberland, vice commander of the Mountain district, Legion Auxiliary, and Mrs. George Banzhof, Cumberland Auxiliary unit.

The committee in charge of the celebration consists of Earl R. Miller, chairman; Frank Condy, Thomas McGann, James Knepp, Irvin Engle, Daniel Miller, Roy Sleeman and Charles Cole, representing the American Legion, and Mrs. W. O. McLane, chairman; Mesdames Edward J. Ryan, Richard Goldworthy, Joseph R. Durst, Marshall Lewis and Charles Cole.

These apples, he said, may be fed safely in amounts up to forty or fifty pounds per day per cow. It is advisable to crush or chop them, he added.

Investigations at several experimental stations have shown as far as milk production is concerned, that apples have about fifty per cent the nutritive value of corn silage, about fifteen per cent that of dry hay.

Other investigations have shown that wheat is a satisfactory feed for all farm animals when fed in suitable rations, university livestock and dairy authorities said.

Dr. Turk declared that wheat has about the same feeding value as corn for dairy cattle.

years and the federal courts are controlled by the executive branch of the government, thus drawing all three branches under one head. State rights are fast disappearing, he added, declaring that the people must awaken "because freedom can only be preserved in the ballot boxes."

Miller urged the voters to "exercise their right and duty of voting" in this critical time, since the "thing that has made this country great is its form of government."

"If you think," he said, "that I have the qualifications you want, I humbly solicit your support. I pledge I will serve as a people's judge, not responsible to any political clique or small group."

Pletcher introduced all the Republican nominees for county offices. The Arion band of Frostburg provided music.

The rally last night climaxed an all-day tour of towns throughout Allegany county. Brief addresses were made at each stop and the nominees were greeted by hundreds of enthusiastic voters.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO SELL TYPEWRITERS TO GOVERNMENT

Typewriters needed for the armed forces will be purchased by the government from private citizens. It is estimated a total of half a million machines are needed. Allegany county will be asked to contribute several hundred machines within the next few months.

In an endeavor to find the number of typewriters available in this county, Orville M. Marquis, just appointed chairman of the County Typewriter Procurement Committee, is asking all companies and individuals to report to him. Post Office Box 628, how many typewriters made since January 1, 1935 they are willing to sell to the government for army and navy requirements.

None of these machines, Marquis made clear, will be used by government civilian agencies. They are exclusively for the fighting forces. Even the government departments are being required to give up a third of their machines to help supply the deficit of the Army, Navy and Marines.

As an indication of the great need for typewriters (which are not being produced during the war) it is revealing to know that a battleship requires 59; an aircraft carrier 55; a cruiser 30, and smaller warships in proportion.

Chairman Marquis said today that all typewriters taken by the government will be paid for, and that as many as 1,000 machines should be secured in this county by schools, business concerns and individuals, and that a fifth of all newer machines be reported as available for government purchase at once.

who failed to report last year when the law became effective but he warned that no action was taken at the close of the season because many of the hunters were ignorant of the fact that such a law existed. Action, however, will be taken against those who fail to report this year's kill by January 15, 1943.

Labor and Housing Situation Studied At Conference

Harold W. Smith Attends National Meeting of Secretaries

Manpower shortages and the housing situation were among the subjects discussed at the convention of the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries, held last week in Detroit, Mich.

Harold W. Smith, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce, said yesterday.

Smith attended the conference and heard A. A. Liveright, assistant to the director of the War Manpower Commission, summarize the labor situation.

Liveright, according to Smith, said the army and war industry requirements in 1943 will be twenty-nine million persons and added that there will be an estimated shortage of 3,500,000 workers. In reaching that conclusion, Liveright told the secretaries he had estimated the available workers, unemployed laborers who will go to work, use of 3,500,000 women and a reduction from 8,300,000 to 7,900,000 agricultural workers.

The only way the deficiency can be equalized, he said, is by transferring workers from so-called non-essential activities to the war effort.

Howard Strong, representative of the National Housing Agency, discussed the housing situation and said that private building of houses will be "out." Where it is impossible to house workers in private homes, he continued, temporary government-built dormitories will be erected.

Private housing, Strong added, is being eliminated by material shortages and the labor situation. The government, he said, wants to encourage labor to work where shortages exist.

HARRY MOLINARI WILL BE QUESTIONED ON GIRL'S CHARGES

Harry Molinari, 35, of 224 Massachusetts avenue, will be questioned today by the state's attorney's office on charges made against him by a 17-year-old girl, Virginia Winebrenner, of Mt. Savage. She accused Molinari of attempting to attack her in a Baltimore street bar room after the place closed at midnight.

The girl was held as a witness, and police also arrested Nora Emerick, 18, of Barreille, as a material witness in the case. Officers C. C. Roby, Edwin Liliya and John E. Sherry investigated. They reported that the girl told them she remained in the cafe while the Emerick girl was taken home by another man, and that Molinari ripped off part of her clothing, then slapped her when she repulsed his advances. She said she escaped through the back door and ran to police headquarters.

Molinari and the two girls are held in the city jail pending the investigation.

Mother Released From Charge of Deserting Family

Cedar Street Woman Goes Back Home with Her Children

A circuit court jury returned a verdict of not guilty on a charge of deserting four of her six small children, in the case of Mrs. Zella White, Cedar street.

The case first came to the attention of authorities when neighbors complained that the children were at their home with no one to care for them. Investigation resulted in removing three of the children to the Emergency home and one to the Memorial hospital for treatment for a toe injury. This child was later taken to the home.

All of the children were returned to Mrs. White yesterday, although she requested authorities to leave them at the home until she receives her next allotment check from the government as the wife of a soldier.

It was the mother's defense that she had been on a trip of an undisclosed duration with one of her children, leaving the other four in the custody of Mrs. Catherine Roby who occupies half of the double house where the White family lives. It was brought out that Mrs. Roby, who works, is absent from home part of the day, particularly at night.

Harry A. Balch, superintendent of the Emergency Home, testified that only one of the children, the youngest, was at home when he arrived and that she was locked inside the house. This child, he said, had to be taken to a hospital for stitches in a lacerated toe.

A row of Mrs. White's Cedar street neighbors testified to her reputation as a mother who takes good care of her children.

Juvenile court records carry an entry of Mrs. White's conviction several years ago on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of her children.

McGann in Navy Reserve; Will Go to Great Lakes

Leo V. McGann, bus driver of the Potomac Edison Company, who enlisted in the Navy Reserve Saturday, October 19 in Baltimore, has been called to active service.

He will report to the Baltimore recruiting station tomorrow and will be sent to Great Lakes, Ill., for his basic training.

McGann is a former employee of the Times and Alleganyan Company.

COMPTON SERVICES ARE HELD HERE

The funeral service for Robert Ashton Compton, aged 72, of 4 Browning street, was held yesterday afternoon at Grace Methodist Episcopal church, with the Rev. Charles M. LeFev, pastor, officiating.

Widely known as "Captain Bob," Compton died early Monday morning after being seriously ill ten days.

He retired from service as a Baltimore and Ohio railroad passenger conductor about four years ago.

The organist for the service was Mrs. Alma Wilson and the soloist was Sgt. Oliver Rice. A quartette consisting of Sgt. Rice, Mrs. Ruth Wolford, Mrs. Virginia Henry and William H. Gill, also sang.

Active pallbearers were Carl R. Amower, Amos Allender, George V. Steele, Robert W. Young, John Paynter, and Frank E. Mills.

Honorary pallbearers were William R. Mendenhall, George D. Tedrick, Hice R. Laughlin, Jay D. Ranck, George W. Light and Edgar W. Rice.

Interment will be made today in Mt. Olivet cemetery, Frederick.

Samuel F. Leyh Dies in Halethorpe

Relatives here have received word of the death yesterday, of Samuel F. Leyh, aged about 36, of Halethorpe, Md., formerly a resident of this city.

He was a son of the late Frederick Leyh, onetime storekeeper for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad here, and Mrs. Emma Leyh.

Besides his mother, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. William Reinhardt, Dorsey, Md., and five brothers, William A. Leyh of 157 Thomas street, here; George F. Leyh, Park Heights, here; Ernest and Phelps Leyh, both of Halethorpe; and Charles Leyh of Camp Eustis, Virginia.

The Leyh family left Cumberland about ten or twelve years ago but have been frequent visitors here since that time. Samuel Leyh was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company here and also of Halethorpe. Funeral services will be held Friday in Baltimore.

Funeral services for Charles Leonard Moore, 53, of 16 Arch street, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineer who died Sunday, were held yesterday afternoon at the home.

Theaters Today

Gargan's Past Reveals A Man of Top Talent

You name the job and William Gargan has probably held it — either in real life or on the screen. So the character he plays in the Shirley Temple picture, "Miss Annie Rooney," coming tomorrow to the Maryland theater, is strictly acting. For Gargan plays the part of a man who thinks there is no future in "just a job."

The list of jobs he has worked at since seeing the light of day in Brooklyn thirty-seven years ago reads like a recitation from the classified section of the telephone directory. Gargan's acting blood first showed itself at St. James high school when he won a gold medal in an elocution contest. He liked the feeling of appearing before the public and filed it away for future reference.

When he started to earn his living, he didn't try acting until he became a Hawaiian native in "Aloma of the South Seas" for two weeks. But other extra work followed and his real opportunity finally arrived—opposite Leslie Howard in "The Animal Kingdom." This brought him to Hollywood where he repeated his role as a pugnacious Irishman. Since then film work has kept him constantly busy.

"Holiday Inn" Ending Decided by Fan Vote

If you were an average girl and had to choose between spending your life on a Connecticut farm listening to Bing Crosby singing, and a Hollywood career as a dancer with Fred Astaire, what would you do?

That's a question Paramount put to its fans recently because the studio wanted to be sure it had the right ending for Irving Berlin's grand new picture, "Holiday Inn," now showing at the Strand with Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire starred, and featuring Marjorie Reynolds, Virginia Dale and Walter Abel.

In the film Crosby, Virginia and Astaire, a song-and-dance trio, work in a New York night club. Crosby is tired of the grind. He wants to retire to his Connecticut farm and

"Attention!" and "Sergt." Sport Means It, Too!

Four rookies line up for inspection by "Sergt." Sport, at a California center for training dogs for United States Army service. "We'll make good soldiers of these boys—or else," says Sport. We suspect that the "sergeant" isn't really as tough as he sounds, since he looks like a pretty good guy.

enjoy holidays. He thinks he has persuaded Virginia to go with him, but she decides to marry Astaire instead. Off goes Bing by himself, only to discover that you can't run a farm alone and still have time for celebrations. So he decides to turn the farm into an inn.

He falls in love with Marjorie Reynolds, who dances and sings for him at the inn, but Astaire steals her for his new dancing partner when Virginia deserts him.

The writers who worked on this original Irving Berlin idea couldn't agree on the ending. Some felt it would be more believable for Marjorie to settle down in the country with Bing; others that she would want the glamour of a screen career with Astaire. So a thousand women, students and workers in various professions, were canvassed. Two thirds of the young women voted for life on the farm!

One of the many beautiful Hollywood starlets to hail from the bluebonnet state is Lynn Merrick, leading lady opposite Don "Red" Barry in "The Cyclone Kid."

opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater. Lynn was born in Fort Worth, Texas, and received her education at the Rose Haven seminary in New Jersey high school and Westlake School for Girls.

She majored in dramatics, with the intention of becoming an actress, but made her start in the professional world as a model, doing Little theater work on the side.

Because of her excellent work in such Republic pictures as "Sis Hopkins," and "The Gay Vagabond," she was placed under contract at the studio and has been appearing opposite Don Barry in all his recent action pictures.

Miss Burke Gives A Surprise Party

The birthday party given by Billie Burke on the set of "Topper Returns" was strictly a surprise. It was especially surprising to H. B. Warner, for whom the party was given. The reason: It was not Warner's birthday.

"What's the difference?" asked Miss Burke, handing Warner his ice cream and cake.

A short time ago, Warner, who plays the part of Carrington in the Hal Roach mystery-comedy which is now at the Garden theater, complained to other members of the cast, including Miss Burke, who is Mrs. Topper in the picture, that he could never remember the anniversary of his birth. It always sneaked up on him, he said, and usually he forgot until after it was past.

Miss Burke remembered the conversation, and decided it would be fun to celebrate, with all members of the cast and crew participating. The co-feature at the Garden today is "The Strange Case of Dr. RX," starring Patric Knowles, Lionel Atwill and Anne Gwynne.

French Rule in Tahiti Is 100 Years Old

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP)—This year marked the centenary of French protection over the fabled island of Tahiti. Queen Pomare IV, last of the independent monarchs, at first fought European intervention but later ruled 35 years under the French. Her reign is looked upon as the golden age of Tahiti.

53 Budget Requests Ready for Legislature

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP)—State Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman has announced receipt of fifty-three of state departmental budget requests for 1944 which showed an increase over 1943 of $643,519.55 and for 1945 with an increase of $1,642,585.55.

The budgetary requests, Kirkman said, are to be among 120 presented to the coming session of the state legislature for approval.

In addition to their regular estimated operating expenses, three departments—the military department, Morgan State College and Montrose School for White Girls—asked for extra sums totaling $568,900 for the construction of buildings, improvements, etc. In 1944 and Morgan College requested $322,000 and the military department $200,000 for capital expenditures during 1945.

Plan To Scramble Big Leagues Assailed

Magnates Greet Baseball Scheme With Indignation

Suggestion of "Eastern" and "Western" Omelets Raises Storm

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—A report that big league baseball might scramble the American and National Leagues into "Eastern" and "Western" omelets next season in order to combat the wartime transportation problem raised a storm of scornful comment from diamond officials today.

Only the first half-dozen indignant wires had hit the desk when it became obvious that the men who run baseball would not part of any plan that would submerge the identities of the rival leagues. Later, as the magnates thought the matter over more thoroughly, they jabbed their pens in paper and described the scheme as "silly" and as "another wartime brainstorm."

The supposed plan, reported by the Herald-Tribune today as having been outlined by an "unnamed baseball official," did not draw a single supporter among those sounded out by the Associated Press. Even President Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators, who in his years probably has introduced more radical baseball ideas than any man living, said flatly he didn't like it.

Sectional Circuits

Under the scheme, the four Eastern American League clubs and the four Eastern National League outposts would constitute the "Eastern" League, playing a regular schedule of games. The eight Western Clubs would do the same, thus obviating the necessity of the long train jumps between the two sections.

The plan would, of course, completely submerge the identities of the National and American Leagues and knock the World Series into a cocked hat, though there presumably would be nothing to prevent a playoff between the Eastern and Western division champions.

Commissioner K. M. Landis refused to discuss such an arrangement, balking abruptly when told it had been thought up by an "unnamed official." Will Harridge, president of the American League, said "there's nothing to it," while Ford Frick, still feeling mellow over his National League's victory in the recent World Series, suggested calmly that it would not be necessary to consider such a "radical" proposal unless an emergency arose.

Breadon Fumes

Sam Breadon, president of the champion St. Louis Cardinals, was not so temperate. "If baseball is that hard up it better stop altogether," he fumed. "Intersectional rivalry is a bulwark of fan interest."

Others drew deep breaths and railed:

Warren Giles, Cincinnati Reds: "Just another wartime brainstorm."

Alva Bradley, Cleveland Indians: "I haven't heard of the plan, but it's silly."

Bill Benswanger, Pittsburgh Pirates: "It is utterly impractical. Every club in the Western division would be deprived of playing in the largest city, New York."

"Perhaps fortunately for his blood pressure, President Ed Barrow of the Yankees is down South hunting and could not be reached for his comment."

LA SALLE'S RESERVES TRIM AHS JAYVEES

The LaSalle High Reserves, sparked by Fullback Jim Jones, scored a 13-0 victory over the Allegheny High Jayvees on the Campo-bello gridiron yesterday afternoon.

Jones, who went over for both of LaSalle's touchdowns, marked up his first six-pointer in the opening quarter. In the last period, Jones hit pay dirt again with Earl Conn tackling on the extra point.

Durst, Allegheny halfback, was injured in the first quarter and his successor, Harper, made one of the best runs of the afternoon as soon as he got into action. The lineup:

LaSalle
 LE. H. Ways ..... B. Stanley
 LT. B. Shober ..... J. Pitt
 LG. D. Diley ..... W. Bertelli
 C. T. Harvey ..... B. Anderson

 FB. J. Jones ..... B. Smith

Substitutes: LaSalle—Robinson, Shaffer, Brannon, Allegheny—Twigg, Neal, Yoder, Smith, Nickle, Harper, Whitman, DeHart, Smith.

Touchdowns—Jones 2.
 Point after touchdown—Conn.

Morton Cooper Wins National Player Award

Cardinal Hurler Earns 263 out of a Possible 336 Points

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—Mort Cooper, the big apple-cheeked right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, muffed three chances to prove to the American League that he was the pitcher of the year, but he didn't leave any room for doubt in his own circuit and as a result he was named today as the most valuable player of 1942 in the National League.

Cooper's twenty-two victories, ten of them shutouts, spurred the Cardinals to the pennant and earned him 263 points out of a possible 336 in the balloting of a committee of twenty-four members of the Baseball Writers Association of America for the annual award.

His teammate, Enochs (Country) Slaughter, the hard-hitting right-fielder of the word champions, came in second with six first place votes and a total of 200 points while Mel Ott, the manager and home run slugger of the New York Giants, was third with four first place nominations and 190 points.

Behind Cooper, Slaughter and Ott, the committee ranked Mickey Owen of the Brooklyn Dodgers fourth with 103 points; John Mize, New York, fifth, 97; Pete Reiser, Brooklyn, sixth, 81; Marion, St. Louis, seventh, 81; Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn, eighth, 42; Bob Elliott, Pittsburgh, ninth, 39; and Claude Passeau, Chicago, tenth, 33.

Crusaders Defeat Lions in Grid Game

The Cumberland Crusaders, with Karl Muller, Joe Pelleri and Bill Pitzer featuring, defeated the Hill-top Drive Lions 18-6 in a football game here this week. Bill Wilson and Tommy Geatz were outstanding for the Lions.

"Maule" Clark scored the Lions' only touchdown in the first period. Muller and Pelleri were on all of the Crusader scoring and one of Muller's kicks covered nearly sixty yards.

NAVY-NOTRE DAME, GEORGIA-ALABAMA GAMES TOP WEEK'S SLATE

Intersectional game between Notre Dame and Navy in Cleveland and the tough conference encounters between Georgia and Alabama in the Southeastern and Ohio State and Wisconsin in the Big Nine headline the juicy football fare for Saturday, October 31. Other important games include Duke against Georgia Tech, Indiana versus Iowa Naval Cadets, Michigan and Illinois, Pennsylvania and the Army and Syracuse and North Carolina Pre-Flight. Biggest crowd of the day is expected at Cleveland for the Irish-Middies' clash. The game is to be held in the Municipal stadium, which seats in excess of 80,000.

Bronco Forward Pass Combination Harvests Points

Freitas and Beals Comprise Double Nomination for All-America

By SAM JACKSON

SANTO CLARA, Calif., Oct. 27. (Wide World)—The most promising all-America football nomination on the Pacific Coast to date is a double one—the team of Jess Freitas and Alvin Beals of the Santa Clara Broncos.

Freitas is a halfback and Beals an end, and together they make up a forward pass combination that eclipses anything seen in the far west for a long way back.

When a veteran sports expert declared that "the Freitas-Beals team is at least ninety per cent of Santa Clara's scoring punch" he was saying a good deal, because Santa Clara is consistently the best team on the coast. In the six full seasons that Buck Shaw has been coach, the Broncos have won forty games, lost eight and tied four. This season they have knocked over Utah, Stanford, California and Oregon State—the latter being the Rose bowl champion.

Beals, a senior, started his third year of varsity play with his admirers already electing him all-American. Freitas was brushed off with the statement that "almost any passer would look good throwing to Beals." However, in the opening game the Utah Players were so impressed by Beals' reputation that they virtually smothered him. Freitas then demonstrated that he could pass to other players and a 12-to-0 victory was the result. A writer reported: "Beals was a good decoy. . . . He didn't catch any touchdown passes but he was responsible in large measure for both scores."

Against Stanford two spectacular passes, Freitas-to-Beals, won the ball game. In the California victory Beals again starred, though the long, fourth-down touchdown pass from Freitas was received by a teammate. Against Oregon State the lone winning score was a Freitas-to-Beals pass.

Both boys have outstanding playing ability quite aside from passes. Beals is an extremely deceptive player and is part of Santa Clara's intricate fakes, and also is a superior defensive player. Freitas has come into his own as a ball carrier and would rate a place on the team even without his passing ability.

Both members of the combination are 21, though Freitas is a year behind his partner in college. Beals is five feet eleven and weighs 185, while Freitas is an inch shorter and weighs 172.

Some indication of how these two stack up with the acknowledged greats of football will come when Santa Clara meets the Navy Pre-Flight school of St. Marys on November 22. Then the two potential all-Americans of 1942 will tangle with men who have already won the honor.

Bucks by "Buck"

Russell Lee Senter, 155-pound fullback of the N. C. State College Wolfpack, is nicknamed "Buck" and descriptions of State games frequently read: "Buck Senter bucked center."

Storms Ahead

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—You can listen for the thunder. Saturday will be the day of the big crash as far as the unbeaten are concerned. This list will look like a wheat field after harvest time. Here are the unwhipped teams to date that move into the quagmire or quick sands of trouble over the weekend—Ohio State, Wisconsin, Alabama, Georgia, Army, Pennsylvania, Georgia Tech, Boston college, Detroit, T. C. U. and Tulsa.

They not only face the toughest brand of opposition, but six of them—Ohio State and Wisconsin, Alabama and Georgia, Army and Pennsylvania—tangle together where the shining axe can't miss, barring ties.

In addition to this, Georgia Tech will have a stormy afternoon against a stampeding Duke team and Boston college isn't going to find Georgetown soft on her flying trip along the Dixie highway. These games will have vital bearing on Eastern, Midwestern and Southern fronts.

Scrambled Rankings

Paul Brown's Buckeyes will find Harry Stuhldreher and his improving Badgers a rugged lot to take in defense of Ohio State's top ranking. The field will be flooded with star backs, including Fekete, Garlinghaus, Harder and Hirsch—four of the country's best. The same will be true when Army takes on Pennsylvania and Georgia becomes involved with Alabama, one of the big games of a big football day.

Such big names as Mazur and Stiff, Sinkwich and Craft will be put to critical tests in the day's operations by land and air. The two contests between Georgia and Alabama, and Georgia Tech and Duke are sure to be headline efforts on any final Southern ranking.

Alabama, Georgia and Georgia Tech are among the strongest teams in the country, packed up around the front with Ohio State. In paging the opinions of Southern experts we find them about equally split between Wally Butts' Georgia Bulldogs and Frank Thomas' Crimson Tide. Frank Sinkwich will be the man to stop an outstanding star—but Alabama backers believe Craft will match him.

Buckeye and Badger

Ohio State has her hardest game in defending her spot at the top of the pile in late October. This Buckeye team might be the best Ohio State ever knew. It has a veteran line and a fine array of fast backs.

It might also be suggested that Harry Stuhldreher has the best Badger team he ever handled at Wisconsin. His powerful attack has been carried along with a vastly improved defense. In Pat Harder and Elroy Hirsch he has two of the best you'll find anywhere.

These two teams will contribute more than their share to the day's class which makes Saturday by all odds the big day so far of the 1942 season.

Army and Penn

Army, Pennsylvania and Boston college have been the best in the East. Penn has been tied by an alert, hard fighting Princeton team that is much better than it once looked to be. This Princeton squad also makes Williams look better and better week by week.

When you have two such backs as Hank Mazur and Bert Stiff tossed into the same pit you are certain to get a complete collection of action in any sort of decent weather. This ably coached Army team is packed with speed, drive, spirit and cohesive effort. It is one of the best first string Army teams I've ever seen.

But there is also tremendous speed and power in this Pennsylvania outfit, another well coached squad that on a dry field will test any defense. On the side you'll find hard tackling and hard blocking, the two most important fundamentals left.

About Boston College

In her drive to an unbeaten season, Boston college has two hard games left—on the danger side—Georgetown this week, and Fordham later on. I still think Boston college has one of the leading chances of the year to go unbeaten, which few will do.

The winging Eagles are big and fast. Their smashing defeat of Wake Forest, conquerors of Duke, was only further proof of the merchandise they have in stock. But Georgetown is nothing to take or granted, especially in this B. C. party.

It might also be mentioned that Army is now Penn's highest hurdle—again on the college side. If Penn can get by Army, the rest of the way is fairly open.

Army-Navy Game May Draw Crowd Of Only 8,000

Annapolis Officials Study Census and Foresee Empty Seats

By DAVE FRAILEY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 27. (AP)—If you aren't convinced that this is war, try to imagine how fantastic Annapolis City Counselor Henry J. Tarantino's words would have sounded this time last year.

"There's no doubt," he said today, "but what the stands will be virtually empty for the Army-Navy football game, unless some provision is made for out-of-town people to attend."

Back of that forecast lies a closed session with the city's latest census, reports and voting lists, plus some fancy mathematical calculations.

Stadium Holds 22,000

Tarantino's figures show that every Annapolitan, including the entire United States Naval Academy midshipmen regiment, the academy personnel and bases-in-arms and a goodly number of country folk, must become pigskin fans by November 28 to make even the slightest bulge in Thompson stadium, site of the traditional service contest, which holds 22,000 persons.

By adherence to President Roosevelt's order restricting attendance solely to Annapolis residents, only 20,000 at the most will be eligible to see the game. The population of Annapolis is 14,000. Another 6,000 persons live in nearby suburbs.

Voting lists disclose that less than 8,000 Annapolitans are adults; 7,596 to be exact. This means approximately 11,000 adults are among the privileged few, with the accent on few.

History May Repeat

Tarantino estimates that several thousand of this number would include older persons whose football interest had faded, persons who never were grid fans, and still others who wouldn't attend because of non-interest or business reasons.

Tarantino likewise believes that few youths under the voting age, even though they gladly would sacrifice a certain amount of movies and sodas to see the game, would scrape together $4.40 for a ticket. If Tarantino's figures are accurate, the famous game which has drawn crowds of more than 100,000 in recent years, would attract only about 8,000, which in this case is history repeating itself.

A mere 10,000 persons occupied the stands on old Farragut field when Army and Navy collided in 1893, the last time the classic was played here.

Temple Makes Changes

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27. (AP)—Michigan State will find at least four new faces in the Temple lineup here Saturday. Out because of injuries suffered in the Owls' defeat by North Carolina Pre-Flight last week will be Johnny Ginda and Emil Liliola, freshman backs; Sid Beshunsky, veteran guard, and Angelo Sparagna, a back.

Real Alligators Root For Infantry Eleven

PORT BENNING, Ga., Oct. 27. (AP)—The One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Infantry's football team, the Gators, has a pair of real alligators for rooters.

One of them, an eight-footer, is equipped with full regalia of helmet, grid pants and a jersey.

Known as "Adam Lazonga," the big gator tips the scales at 225 and might be a big help in the line if the infantrymen could slip him in when the going gets tough.

LOSE ONE TO WIN TWO
A SITUATION of fairly frequent occurrence is that in which you come down toward the end of the play and have possible finesses remaining in two suits. If they are both toward the same defender's hand, and especially if indications are that both of them will lose, you are better off not to try them both. You are then faced to face with a marked invitation to attempt a lead-throwing end-play. Forego the finesse of one suit. Take its top card and lead the other to the man marked as having the winner. When he takes it, he must then pitch right back into the fork of your second finesse.

As soon as the spade 9 was led and North saw the dummy, he knew East had made one of his habitual shaded not-vulnerable doubles. With two tricks sure in that suit, he could get game with four hearts, two club tops and one diamond. The first trick brought the spade 7, 10 and J, then he finessed the heart 4, took two heart tops and led another to set up the last heart. West won, switched to the diamond 4, bringing the K and A, and East used his spade 2 for exit, to the Q, K and A.

Seeing his contract certain, North decided to try for an extra trick by finessing the diamond 10. So he led to the club K, cashed the heart 9 and led the diamond 8 to the 10, the J winning. East put him back with the diamond 9 to the Q. All that North could do was cash his ninth trick, the club A, then give up the J to the Q.

With four cards left, the diamond Q-10 and the club A-J, and East marked for two of each suit, with probably the missing honors in them, all that he had to do was lead to the club A and make East take the J with the Q. East would have had to lead back toward the diamond Q-10, trapping his own J—or that of his partner, if West happened to have it. There was no risk of West winning the club trick, as he would have failed to follow suit on the second club lead.

McKeldin Assails Governor O'Connor For His Infamous Income Tax Rates

GOP Gubernatorial Nominee Says Opponent Is Political Machine Builder and Promise Breaker

Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, Republican nominee for governor, thrilled a large audience last night at the Maryland theater as he assailed his opponent, Governor O'Connor, as an habitual promise breaker, a political machine builder and a selfish tax grabber whose oppression of state citizens demanded repudiation at the polls Tuesday.

The state income tax is an infamous thing, McKeldin declared, particularly at this time when the people are straining every effort and making great sacrifices to help win the war. Yet, we are hearing nothing about a return of the huge surplus to the people from whom it was wrongfully taken, he said, nor seeing any move for economy.

Raises Income Tax Rates

Under the late Governor Nice, a moderate income tax raised a million dollars, the nominee said. But under O'Connor the tax has produced $25,000,000, which is not astonishing inasmuch as the rate on earned income was boosted 40 per cent and on unearned income 1-100 per cent later being reduced but fractionally. And now, McKeldin explained, there has piled up a surplus of $10,000,000. Hence, O'Connor has used $15,000,000, or $7,500,000 a year more than was necessary. The $10,000,000 surplus, added to the $15,000,000, used without effecting any needed economies, makes the $25,000,000, which is exactly the amount produced by the income tax.

"Therefore," McKeldin said, "I can't see any reason for any income tax at all—and it should be wiped out, altogether."

That brought a roar of cheers from the audience.

At any rate, allowing for a working capital of $2,000,000, no income tax would be needed for the next two years, McKeldin said, at the present rate of spending, which by all means should be curtailed.

It is a crime, McKeldin declared, for this money to be lying around idle. "It should be used to help pay for the big war bill," he said, "by returning it to the people and helping them to do so, or by paying it otherwise for such purpose."

More Job Holders Now

McKeldin pointed out that, as there are 1,200 more job holders on the state pay roll since Governor Nice's administration, there certainly is some room for economy in state administration, particularly in time of war.

The O'Connor excuse for rolling up such a big surplus, McKeldin said, is that Harry Nice left a deficit, yet O'Connor never explains that the deficit was inherited by Nice from the Ritchie administration, and if any money were not properly used by Nice, as has been intimated, it is peculiar why his attorney general, who was none other than the present governor, never stepped in to stop it.

Alienates Many Democrats

O'Connor has alienated hundreds of leading Democrats, McKeldin said, with promises which have been repeatedly made and broken so that thousands of disgusted Democrats are going to vote the Republican ticket on Tuesday. The nominee cited the broken promise about the single gubernatorial term as a forerunner of subsequent broken pledges.

In fact, the nominee declared, there are all indications of a victory for the Republican ticket in this election, because of this widespread defection. "Democrats of Anne Arundel county are up in arms and we shall have a majority of 3,000 there," he said. The Eastern Shore Democrats are disgusted with both O'Connor promise breaking and the New Deal, and will roll up a 10,000 Republican majority. In Talbot county, the Democratic registration has been reduced from 3,200 to 1,800. Baltimore city will roll up a surprising Republican vote."

McKeldin's recital of the attempt to "smear" him and stop him from campaigning through the charges of which he was acquitted, of speeding through Carroll county brought forth much laughter.

Raps Guard Appointments

Political machine building by O'Connor has gone to such extremes, the nominee said, as to prompt bitter Democratic criticism of it, particularly his appointment of bridge and road guards, and civilian defense workers. This latter prompted a Baltimore judge to exclaim that a special session of the legislature was needed to "clear up this civilian defense mess," he added.

It is no wonder, McKeldin said, that no money is being spent for needed road improvements.

McKeldin was introduced by state Senator Robert B. Kimble who pointed out why the Democrats are making strenuous efforts to get "just one, or possibly two" Democratic delegates from Allegany. "It is serving notice on us," he said, "that no good legislation can be expected to be introduced with any"

Mapleside Church Women Plan Annual Retreat Services

Two-day Program Opens Tomorrow and Ends Friday Night

The annual retreat of the week of self denial will be observed with special services tomorrow and Friday, by the Women's Society of Christian Service of Mapleside Methodist church. Tomorrow's service will begin at 10:30 a. m. and will continue throughout the day. The service Friday will begin at 7:30 p. m.

The program tomorrow, entitled "We Build," will feature the themes, "Preparation Through Penitence," "Others Have Labored," "Tested by Our Corner Stone," "Let Each Take Heed How He Buildeth," "A City Which Hath Foundations" and "Whose Builder and Maker is God." These subjects will be presented by various members of the society. The program will include music and readings and will be in charge of Mrs. Jesse R. Dom, president.

At the close of the program Thursday, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed.

The Friday evening program will have two themes, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways" and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." In the development and presentation of these subjects, work of various Methodist institutions will be presented, showing work being done in other countries. Friday's program will be in charge of Mrs. Gertrude Collins.

Women of the church are invited to join in the services and special invitations have been extended the women of Melvin chapel and Fairview church for the Thursday service, while Friday's program is open to the public.

Seabees Officer Will Visit Local Navy Office Thursday

Lieut. Charles S. Richardson, instructor officer of the Seabees, will be in Cumberland Thursday to interview applicants for enlistment in the navy's construction battalion. He will check references of men wishing to join the famed Seabees and assign them ratings in the navy. Chief Petty Officer George J. Carroll, local navy recruiter, asks that all men be sure to bring their references as mechanics or other types of workmen.

Culture, Education Shouldn't Be Retarded for War, Rotarians Hear

Training of Leaders Is Important, Minister Declares

The civilization for which we are fighting today should not be retarded by putting millions of women into industry and by yanking all students out of institutions of higher learning before they complete their education, according to the Rev. E. Fay Campbell, of Philadelphia. While winning the war is uppermost, the Rev. Mr. Campbell said addressing Rotarians yesterday at their weekly luncheon in the Central Y. M. C. A., we should be wary of making everybody into fighters without training due numbers as leaders, as even the fighting and production services will be in need of capable leadership.

These observations came out in the development of the basic theme that culture without religion is doomed to failure, and that essential parts of our culture are, in addition, the womanly influence in the

Synthetic Odors Of War Gas Will Be Used in Test

Decontamination Corps Must Identify Type in Next Blackout Here

Members of Cumberland's Civilian Defense Decontamination Corps will be put to the test of identifying the various types of war gases in the next blackout test here, W. Arnold Gunther, director of the corps, announced yesterday.

Bottles containing synthetic odors of six types of gases used in warfare will be distributed among air raid wardens at points throughout the city and when the alarm is sounded members of the decontamination corps will be required to go to the places designated and identify the type of gas contained in the bottles and report back to the control center.

It will mark the first test of this kind scheduled for Cumberland and Gunther, who is bacteriologist for the Maryland Health Department, is hopeful that the experiment will prove a success.

Course Dates Announced

A course in gas warfare for members of civilian defense groups who have not received this phase of training or those who missed lectures in past courses will be held November 2, 4, 6, 9 and 13 in the city hall auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

The course comprises five lectures and the teaching staff will be composed of chemists of the Celanese Corporation of America, the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company of Luke, and Gunther.

Gas training is an essential part of the civilian defense program, Gunther pointed out, and members of all corps are required to attend the series of five lectures given each month.

150 Attended in October

Approximately 150, including a number of women who are training to become qualified air raid wardens, took the course in October.

Gunther said that training is being given corps of the district as quickly as possible and as soon as arrangements can be made by instructors to reach the different localities.

Alert Citizen Nabs Man Stealing Car

Thomas 'Red' Davis Saves Somerville Nicholson from Car Loss

Cumberlanders are prone to "kick" about traffic conditions on downtown streets but Somerville Nicholson, county supervisor of assessments, is not one of them.

Yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock a man jumped into Nicholson's parked car on Liberty street and drove off hurriedly. Heavy traffic at the intersection of Liberty and Baltimore stopped him.

In the meantime Thomas "Red" Davis, had seen the suspicious actions of the man and as the car was driven off he ran down the street and opened the door and pulled him from the machine.

Although the man struggled to free himself Davis succeeded in taking him to police headquarters about a block away. Officer J. D. Whalley came to Davis' aid near the police station.

Booked on the police docket as Hayward E. Cross, of Cleveland, O., he is held in the city jail on a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

C of C Directors To Meet Thursday

The regular meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the chamber offices, Liberty Trust building. The meeting was originally scheduled for October 16 but was postponed because of the flood.

Daniel McMullen To Speak at Flag Exercises Sunday

Legion Post Will Present Two Banners at North Centre Street Honor Roll

Daniel F. McMullen at the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce's Honor Roll, North Centre street.

Arrangements for the exercises were completed yesterday by a program comprising Mayor Thomas P. Conlon, past commander, G. Ray Lippold, commander, and Samuel E. Graham, Sr., second vice-commander, of the local Legion post.

The program will be opened with a march selection by the band after which an American and Maryland flag will be presented to John L. Towler, chairman of the Allegany County War Memorial Committee, by Commander Lippold in behalf of the American Legion.

As the American flag is raised, the band will play the "Star Spangled Banner" and as the state colors are raised "Maryland, My Maryland" will be played.

The national colors will be raised by William J. McGady, 62, oldest member of Fort Cumberland Post, while Albert P. Kerns, 42, youngest member, will unfurl the state flag to the breezes.

Following an address by Department Commander McMullen, there will be a patriotic selection by the band after which "Taps" will be sounded by Joseph M. Fradiska director.

2,600 Names on Board

The Honor Roll, which has attracted wide attention, contains the names of 2,600 men and women of Cumberland and vicinity serving in the armed services of the United States. Between 500 and 600 additional names are to be placed on the board by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

Farm Bureau To Hold Fifth Annual Banquet And Election Nov. 4

The fifth annual banquet of the Allegany County Farm Bureau will be held November 4 at 7 p. m. at St. Luke's Lutheran church, Columbia street.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Maryland Extension Service, University of Maryland, College Park, has been invited as the guest speaker. A program of music has been arranged and the annual election of officers will be held.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Miss Mabel A. White, secretary of the bureau.

Central Firemen Answer Two False Alarm in Ten Minutes

Firemen of Central Station No. 1 are convinced that the Halloween season is here.

Last night they were called to Baltimore street near Liberty by a false alarm. They had no sooner returned to the fire station than another call was received from a fire box at the corner of South Centre and Harrison streets. It, too, turned out to be a false alarm.

City fire department officials said a heavy fine is assessed on persons who maliciously turn in false alarms.

Season Is Closed On Turkey Hunting In Garrett County

Advance Warning Issued by Minke; Upland Season Will Open Monday

With the twenty-five day upland game hunting season scheduled to open Monday, November 2, in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, last evening called the attention of sportsmen to the fact that there is a closed season on wild turkeys in Garrett county this year.

Minke said that wild turkeys may be taken in Allegany and Washington counties but the hunting of this species of game is unlawful in Garrett.

This marks the second straight year for a closed season on turkeys in Garrett and came about as a result of the severe winter of 1936 practically exterminating the birds.

Turkeys Stage Comeback

Minke said that he was advised by Lloyd Cook, district warden of Garrett county, that several nice flocks of turkeys have been seen in that part of the state in recent weeks, the result of the stocking program carried on in the past two years to put turkey hunting back on its former footing.

Rabbits, squirrels, wild turkeys, ruffed grouse, quail, woodcock and all species of male pheasant may be taken by hunters in Allegany county during the season, November 2 to 30. The same game with the exception of turkeys may be taken in Garrett county during the same period.

The bag limits are: Rabbits, six a day; squirrels, six a day; wild turkeys, one a day and four a season; ruffed grouse two a day and six a season; woodcock, four a day; all species of male pheasant, two a day, and quail, six a day.

Hen Pheasants Taboo

The law prohibits the taking of hen pheasants, Minke pointed out. The hens are plain buff in color while the males are of bright plumage and can easily be distinguished from the female species.

The season on dove hunting all is closed in Garrett and Allegany counties this year.

Minke said that he has received numerous calls from hunters inquiring as to the dates of the upland season. This, he said, is due to the fact that the season in other counties outside of Garrett, Washington and Allegany runs from November 15 to December 31. The season in the three far western counties will not open on November 1 because that date falls on the Sabbath.

There will be a lapse of one week between the close of the upland season and the six-day deer season which opens on Monday, December 7.

Minke predicted that the sale of hunting licenses in Allegany county gives promise of reaching a new high in view of the fact that over 6,300 licenses already have been sold a week in advance of the opening of the season. A record number of 6,600 county and state-wide licenses was sold in 1940.

Must Make Reports

Discussing the law which specifies that hunters must report all species of game during the season, Minke said that violators will be prosecuted this year. Those convicted will be compelled to pay a fine of $2 and costs. Those who fail to get any game also must fill out one of the forms attached to their license.

E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden, reported there were approximately 400 Allegany countians

"Y" Membership Campaign To Get Under Way Nov. 12

Everett R. Johnson Will Be Director; Aim To Boost Members to 1,000

An effort will be made to increase the present membership of the Central Y.M.C.A. to 1,000 during the annual membership campaign which will be inaugurated Thursday, November 12, at 5:45 p. m., with a dinner meeting in the Y.M.C.A. club rooms.

Announcement to this effect was made last evening following a dinner meeting presided over by Roy W. Eves, membership chairman, and attended by a group of persons interested in the future welfare of the association.

Johnson Is Director

The membership campaign will last ten days and will be directed by Everett R. Johnson, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

Meetings will be held during the week of November 7 by the various division leaders and their teams to form a working organization. Leaders will be appointed within the next week, Eves said.

Executive Group Meets

At a meeting of the executive committee, held prior to the dinner, membership fees and the appointment of a boys' work secretary to take care of the increased number of boys joining the "Y," were discussed.

Those attending the meeting included Roy W. Eves, Everett R. Johnson, James W. Bishop, the Rev. Alfred L. Creager, Victor D. Heisey, Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, Edmund S. Burke, Kenneth F. Gerard, Richard F. Renshaw, Harold W. Smith, W. Donald Smith, Henry W. Price, Charles L. Kopp, Mrs. Edgar Vandegritt, Miss Lucille Houck, Ralph B. Doak, Mrs. J. J. Tipton, Stanley Hamilton, Milnor Oswald, Alma Lee Phillips, C. Eugene Howell and Mrs. George W. Legge.

Legion Campaign Nets 220 Members

Figures Top Those of Year Ago and Are 37 Per Cent of 600 Goal

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, has obtained 220 paid-up members, or thirty-seven per cent of the goal of 600 sought in the 1942 campaign, it was revealed last evening at the regular meeting of the post.

Samuel E. Graham, Sr., vice-commander and publicity chairman of the post, said that out of the number signed up in the present campaign, 185 are renewals from 1941, twenty-one are new, ten reinstatements and four transfers from other posts. Those classified as new members are veterans joining the post for the first time or those who have been away five years or more. Those who have been away from the post one or two years and rejoin are classified as reinstated members.

Graham stressed the fact that the current campaign is running well ahead of the 1941 drive when 150 paid-up members were enrolled on October 30.

Fort Cumberland had 569 paid-up members last year, which represented an all-time high for the organization.

The local post will sponsor a Halloween party and dance Saturday evening at 9 o'clock at the Legion home.

Woman Is Recovering

Mrs. Frank B. Robbins, Miller road, Ridgely, Va., who suffered a fractured left leg in a fall near her home on October 12 and underwent a major operation in Allegany hospital October 20 is improving satisfactorily. Her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Smelser, a nurse in Gallinger Municipal hospital, Washington, D. C., was with her mother from time of the accident until yesterday when she returned to Washington.

E. Brooke Lee's Labor Record Draws Criticism from Harris

State's Attorney Says Beall "Anxious To Do Something"

Citing the record of E. Brooke Lee, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Sixth District, in the 1927, 1929 and 1941 sessions of the Maryland House of Delegates, Morgan C. Harris, Republican state's attorney for Allegany county, in an address prepared for radio broadcast yesterday, scored the labor record of the Democratic aspirant and asserted that his Republican opponent, J. Glenn Beall, Frostburg, is "sympathetic with all of our problems" and is "anxious to do something" in Congress.

Harris, recalling that he had served in the Maryland House of Delegates in the sessions of 1927 and 1929 while Lee was speaker of the house, noted that the latter in 1927 voted against "The Child Labor Amendment," which all labor organizations have sponsored for many years.

In 1929, Harris said, Lee voted

DEMOLAY FOUNDER—Frank S. Land, of Kansas City, Mo., founder and secretary general, of the Order of DeMolay for boys between the ages of fifteen and twenty-one years, will be the principal speaker at the complimentary dinner to be given Cumberland Chapter, Order of DeMolay, by the Scottish Rite Bodies of Cumberland, tomorrow at 6:30 p. m., at the All Ghan Shrine Country Club. The DeMolay order is now in its twenty-fourth year and chapters are located in every state of the union, New Mexico, Canada, the Canal Zone and Hawaii.

Military Police Come Here for Six Soldiers

One Admitted Robbing Chattanooga Woman of Her Purse, Orr Says

Military authorities came here yesterday to get six soldiers, arrested in recent days for being absent without leave from their training camps.

Commissioner of Police James Orr said last night that one of the soldiers apprehended had admitted robbing a woman in Chattanooga, Tenn. He gave his name as John J. Kay, of Atlanta, Ga. When arrested by Officer Arthur Kennell he had a purse in his possession bearing the initials "H. W.," police said.

Chattanooga police said Miss Helen Wilson reported her purse stolen from her office on September 10, and that it contained $100, a diamond-studded watch and a number of other articles. The watch and other articles were later found on a vacant lot, but the money was not recovered. The soldier had waived extradition and agreed to return to Chattanooga for trial. However, when military authorities came here for the soldiers held by police, Kay was placed in their custody along with the others.

Stepping-stone to Governorship. Whitworth outlined briefly the duties and responsibilities of the offices of attorney general which, he said, has "been used in the past as a stepping-stone to the governorship."

Politics, the speaker said, should not be reflected in the opinions or activities of the attorney general and every act should be "based on the legal aspect and not on how the party in power will be affected."

"I disclaim any political ambition as such," Whitworth asserted, "I don't want to be a political dictator of my county or state and I don't want to say who shall get a job," he added, promising to "perform all duties of my office to the best of my ability."

Referring again to the war, Whitworth said "we want our boys to come home to the same kind of democracy they left. We must see that they return to an America that still has the American way of living and we of the Republican party pledge ourselves to that."

At 8 a. m. yesterday the mercury stood at thirty-three degrees but gradually rose during the day. Windy winds gave Cumberlanders their first taste of cold weather this fall. Nearby mountain areas reported temperatures as low as twenty-five degrees.

Railroader Is Treated For Puncture Wound

Bernard Long, 30, 221 Virginia avenue, was treated in Allegany hospital at 11:30 a. m. yesterday for a small puncture wound of the lower right abdomen suffered when a needle caught in his clothing while working on a forging machine in the B. and O. shops.

Janet L. Ellsworth, 2, 527 Pine avenue, was treated in Allegany hospital at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon for a head injury suffered in a fall from a step.

Whitworth Calls For Republicans To Support Party

GOP Nominee for Attorney General Speaks to 600 at Rally Here

Declaring that "revolt is in the air," Horace P. Whitworth, West-ernport lawyer who is the Republican nominee for state attorney general, last night predicted that the Democratic party will discover the "dead" Republican party a "live and jolly corpse" on November 3.

Whitworth, speaking to an estimated 600 persons attending a Horace P. Whitworth Republican rally that featured an address by Theodore R. McKeldin, party nominee for the governorship, in the Maryland theater, scored attempts of the Democrats to create a "defeatist attitude" by describing the Republican party as "down and out and dead."

J. Glenn Beall, Frostburg, Republican nominee for Congress from the Sixth District, and Leo H. Miller, Hagerstown, party nominee for associate judge of the Fourth judicial circuit, also spoke briefly at the rally.

Duty To Support Party

It is the duty of every Republican in the state, Whitworth said, to uphold and support the party and make it a "fighting, militant and progressive" power so that when the "New Deal blows up we can take the pieces" and make something out of them.

Old time Democrats, not the New Dealers, Whitworth asserted, "are coming across by the thousands" to support the Republican party, not only here but throughout the nation. The two party system in this country, the Republican nominee said, is an "absolute necessity. Political freedom means that we must have two big parties," he added, "and if the party in power doesn't do well, the voters should turn it out."

During this war, Whitworth declared, "at a time when some of our most important rights are in danger," it behooves every American to pay attention to the laws being put on the statute books—"laws restricting freedom of speech and freedom of the press"
